Within my kaleidoscope head
Bright-colored fragments chink into random images
To form the emerging me.

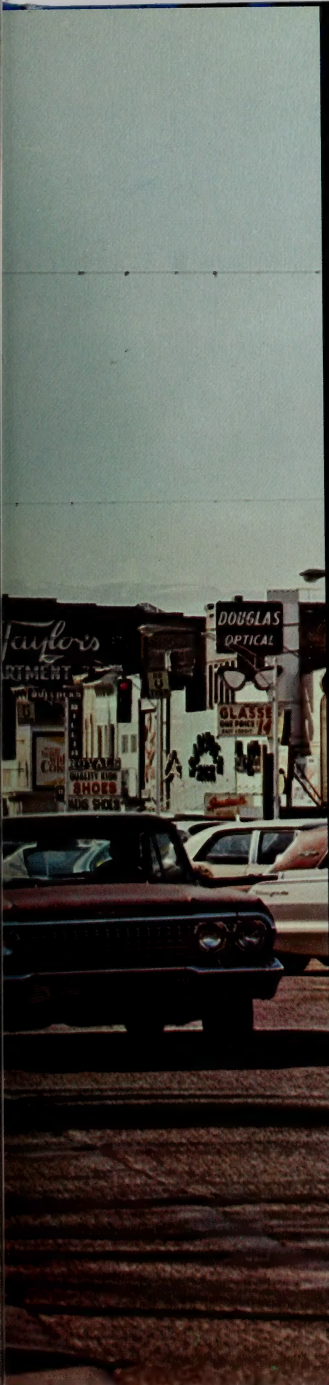

Study's black awful tedium
Carelessly careens to hit me in surprise—
And I find the fascination of discovering the unknown.

Yellow wonder: a dazzling Provo day,
Till the four O'clock crash of devilish purple rainclouds
Hits me umbrella-less.

A man and a woman are walking hand-in-hand on a dirt path covered with fallen autumn leaves. The man is wearing a dark sweater and light blue trousers, while the woman is wearing a bright yellow dress. They are surrounded by trees with dense foliage in shades of orange, yellow, and brown. The scene is captured in a vintage-style photograph with a blue border.

Drinking the stimulating freshness
Of life on my own—the freedom to be active,
To play or run or sing or dream or ponder.

Finding among my group of peers

A friend from Pakistan, Portugal, Peru,

And knowing our cultures are worlds apart, yet congruous.

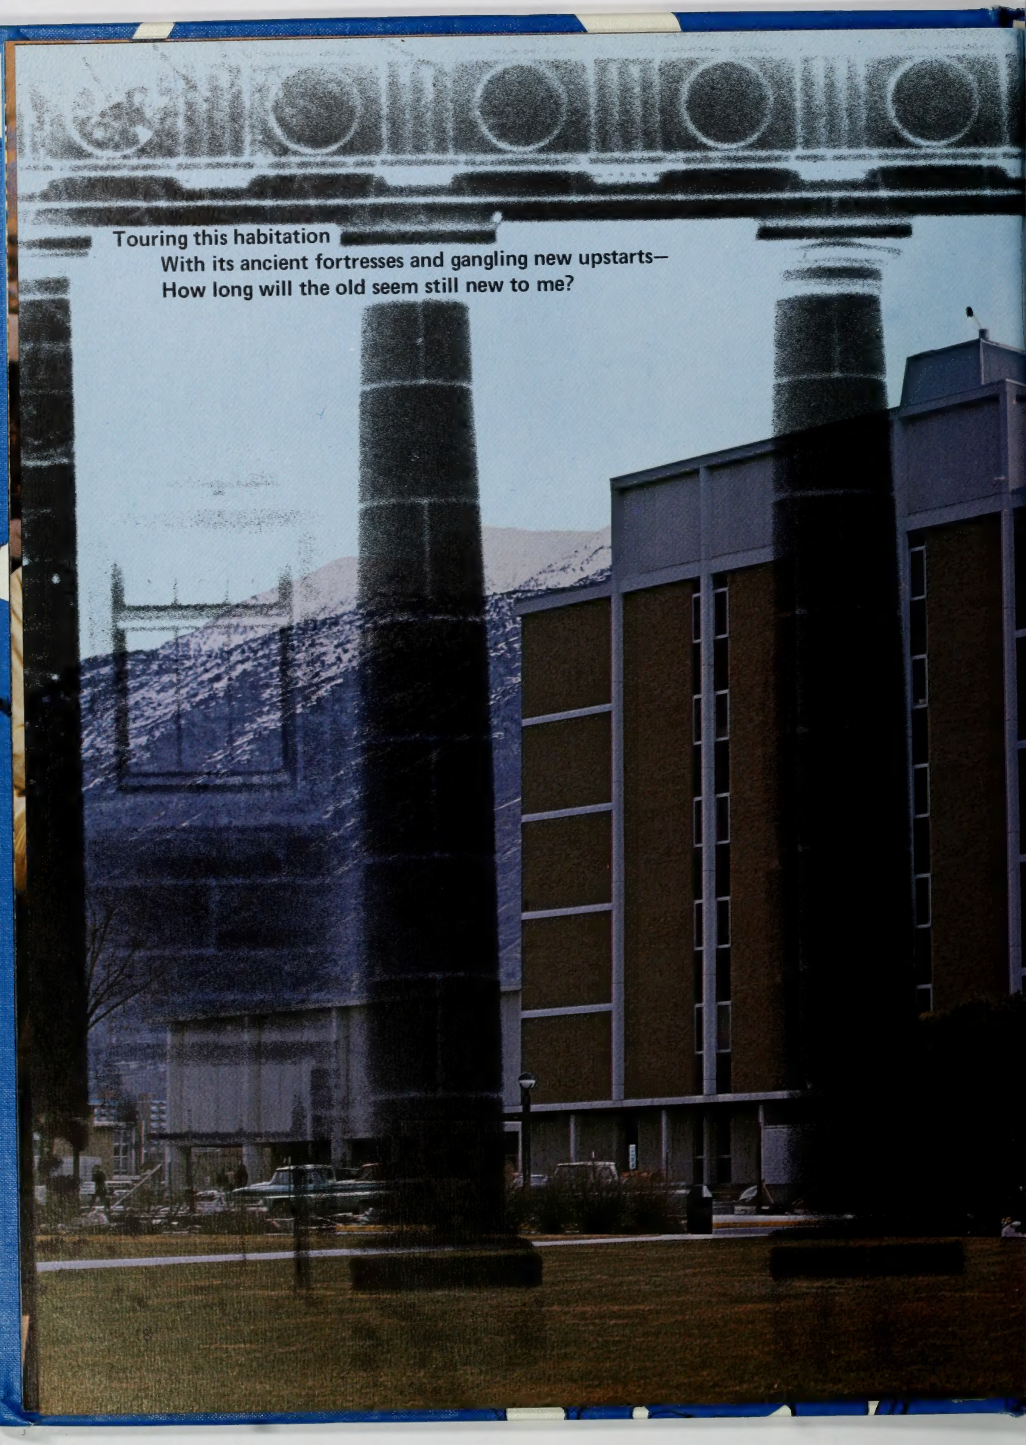

The excitement of finding the most perfect of loves
Slips, slides, slithers into gray oblivion
And I am left free to search again.

Touring this habitation

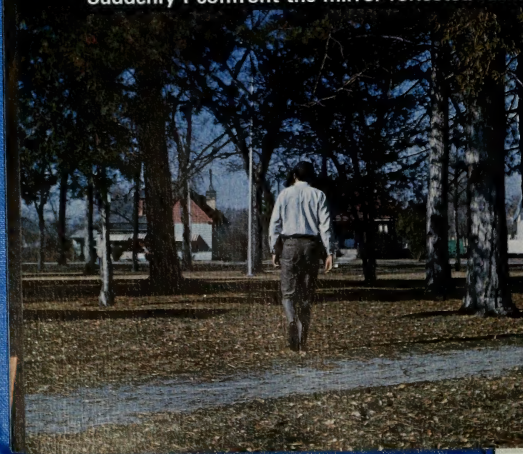

With its ancient fortresses and gangling new upstarts—
How long will the old seem still new to me?

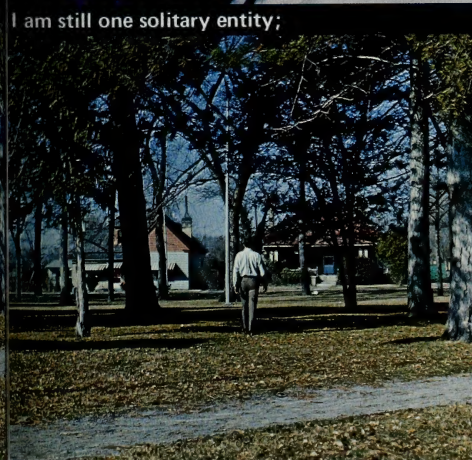

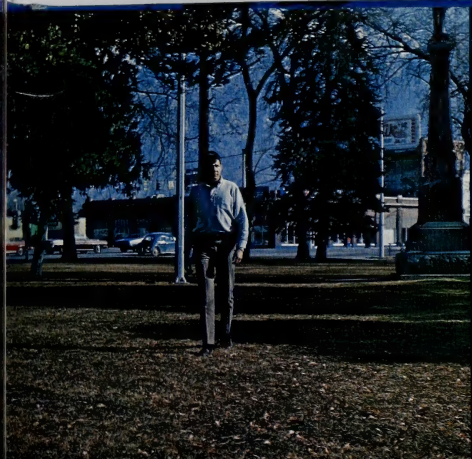

Suddenly I confront the mirror-reflected realization That among crowds and friends and family

I am still one solitary entity;

In spite of pulling controversies
Jarring me this way and that
I know the stable mass of my spirit is eternal—

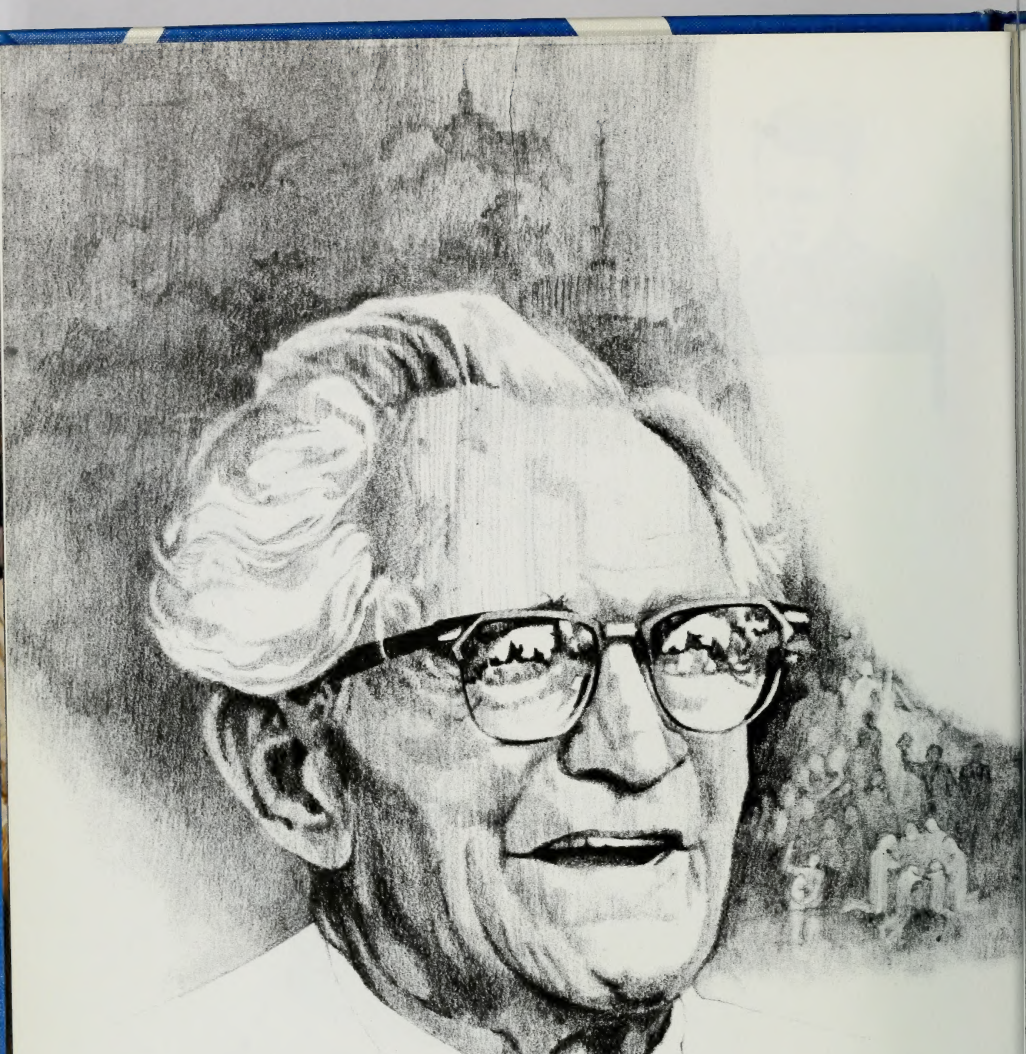

I must earn and learn and shape and carve
Till out of the scattered miscellany of life's contrasts
Comes the unique conglomerate I call me.

1970 saw the passing of President David O. McKay, a leader beloved by people the world over for his kindliness, integrity, and respect for his fellow men. As president of the BYU Board of Trustees, he was a inspiration to the youth who followed his teachings.

Change, which touches every living thing, brought a new leader for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and BYU. President Joseph Fielding Smith, embodying the qualities of compassion, and love of God, led the university into a new era of progress.

Board Counsels Students

Unlike students at most universities, who seldom see the men and women who govern them and make the policies that will affect them, Cougars had the unique opportunity of getting to know the members of the Board of Trustees. Most of the Board members are also members of the First Presidency and the Council of the Twelve Apostles of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

In their capacities as Church leaders, Board members addressed the student body at the regular Tuesday morning Devotional assemblies in the Fieldhouse. They gave insights into the nature of God and religion, university problems, and personal questions of students. The Board of Trustees, through university and Church orientation, helped the student relate to his spiritual world.

A MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT ERNEST L. WILKINSON

It is with a deep sense of pride that I present this message to the students of Brigham Young University through the 1970 Banyan. My pride stems from the fact that during this school year, when irresponsible dissidents have disrupted many university campuses in our nation and abroad, the students of BYU have maintained their composure and stood as examples of respectable young Christian ladies and gentlemen.

Such commendable behavior was not a result of isolation, for during the past year BYU has been heavily involved in the flood of activism and could have been carried away in any of several movements. Yet our students remained calm and met each situation with reason, as educated people are supposed to do. You have made it amply clear to the world this year that you came to study and not to riot.

Despite all of its agonizing upheaval, this is a marvelous age in which you have been chosen to live. Men have walked on the moon, transplanted hearts, built awesome air and undersea craft, synthesized the chemical building blocks of life, and created weapons which, while they can destroy the world at the touch of a button, we hope will be used for advancing civilization. And this University is preparing you to take your place in such a world.

Bearing that in mind let me say that education which does not strengthen character and develop in students maturity and a sense of responsibility to others or to God is incomplete, no matter how distinguished the faculty or how brilliant the students.

It is this balanced type of education that sets BYU above all other institutions of academic endeavor. Indeed, President David O. McKay said, "Brigham Young University is destined to become, if not the largest, then the most proficient institution of learning in the world."

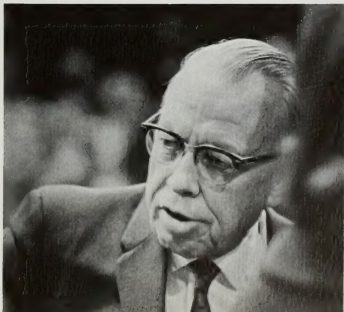

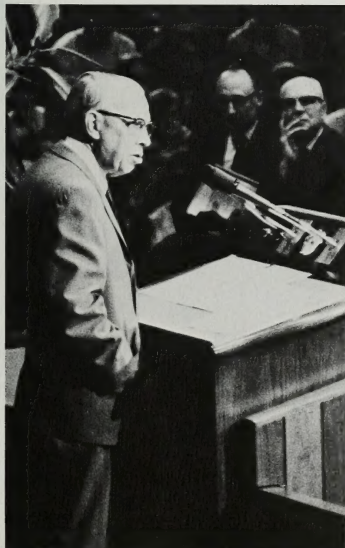

Let me reaffirm the fact that BYU was founded by prophets, and for nearly 100 years it has been maintained by prophets for the proper education of young people for eternity. That involves not only mastery of the laws of nature and society but also a knowledge of and commitment to the laws of God and His dealing with His children.

As I have said before, we envision that this university can become a mighty tool to provide a nucleus of stalwart men and women who will be as the salt of the earth—a mighty army of the sons and daughters of God, trained and prepared to help establish the Kingdom of God on earth.

You have the advantage of such a proper education and it is here for the taking. Therefore, let me implore you who are leaving to go forth to serve in the same light and spirit with which you have been taught.

Sincerely,

Ernest L. Wilkinson

Administrators Promote BYU

The Administrative Council was a sounding board for President Wilkinson, under the influence of the Board of Trustees. Meeting once a month, the council sought ways of bettering the Brigham Young University climate—both academically and financially.

Like any other large organization dealing with people, BYU needs to maintain good working relations with businesses, charitable organizations, research groups and the like. In this vein, Heber G. Wolsey performed his first complete year's duties as Assistant to the President in charge of communications. Good public relations and use of the mass media helped in teaching interested people about BYU, her faculty, students and facilities.

In connection with efforts to upgrade research, BYU purchased 375 acres of land in Springville, adjacent to the university's Ironton Plant property for development of an industrial park. Under the auspices of David B. Haight, director of University Development, the industrial park will hopefully attract much business and industry to the area due to rich possibilities for research and technical consultation from the university, and Utah County.

Security, Health Center Keeps Vigil

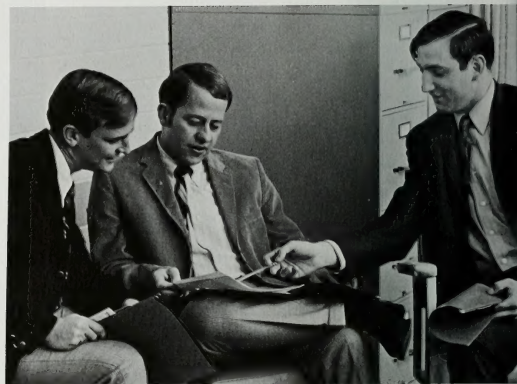

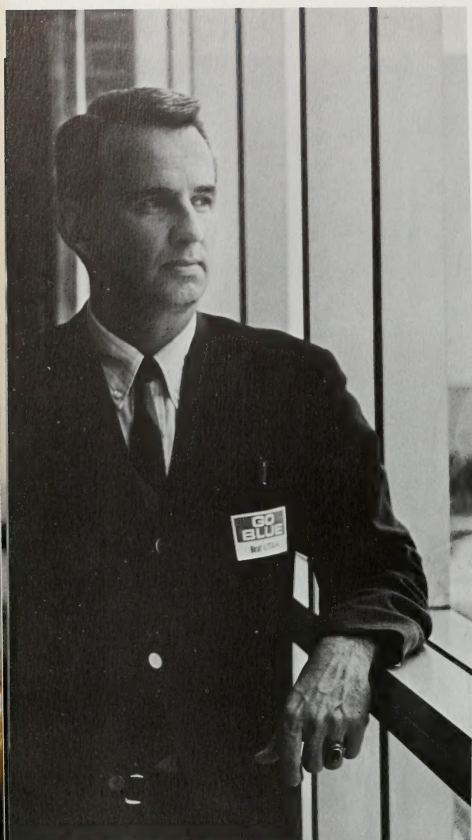

The best interests of each student were served by the people and offices labeled "Student Services." Coordinated by Dean of Students J. Elliot Cameron, members of the staff worked to provide better health, mental attitude, and safety for BYU students.

BYU Security, under the direction of Captain Swen C. Nielsen, kept an around-the-clock vigil seeing that the peaceful atmosphere of the Cougar campus wasn't disturbed. Health Center director Cloyd C. Hofheins supervised the maintenance of good health and physical well-being for students and faculty. Conscious of the need for advice and direction in life, Director of Counseling and Testing Vern Jensen, helped students improve their outlook on life. As new Dean of Women, Lucile O. Petty looked after the special interests and problems of the fairer sex on campus. Assistant Dean of Students LaVar Rockwood assisted Dean Cameron in improving BYU.

Advisers Improve Student Activities

The ASBYU Activity Advisers worked for a rounded education for BYU students, through entertainment, extracurricular activities and special academic programs. Lyle Curtis directed all Wilkinson Center activities and was adviser to the student body president. Curtis Wynder, as assistant director of the Wilkinson Center, was in charge of programming name attractions. Jay Eitner supervised business aspects of the Wilkinson Center and the hobby center and games center. Overseeing the activities of the ASBYU Womens and Academic offices was Joann Parry, with Klea Worsley advising the Culture office. Robert Baird supervised the offices of Student Relations and Organizations, while Paul Genho worked with students in the Social and Athletics offices. Jeff Tanner worked with the Culture office.

Class Government Bows To Voters

Following a battle of student bigwigs that lasted for two years, class government was voted out of the BYU student government setup this year. The December election provided abolishment of all but the Freshman class organization, but allowed class presidents then in office to take seats on the ASBYU Executive Council until their terms subsided at the end of Spring Semester.

Courts, Councils Solve Problems

The student courts and councils serve as arbitrator and coordinator for student problems and activities. The ASBYU Supreme Court hears cases involving student government policies and controversies. Traffic Court convenes to hear pleas of students who feel they have received unfair traffic citations. The Campus Activities Board organizes and plans student activities, while the Inter-Service Council coordinates service projects with the campus service clubs.

The Daily Universe bounced back from a rash of mid-year staff upheavals to become the traditional source of information and entertainment for the student body. A very worthwhile innovation in 1970 was the publication of a monthly magazine supplement consisting of student writing.

Y Publications Improve Communications

The office of Student Publications was handled very capably by several people new to their positions this year. Sue Aardeema and Debbie Carroll, publications secretaries, took over coordination of all Wilkinson Center fifth floor activities. Merwin Fairbanks, adviser to Student Publications for 6½ years, left on sabbatical in December. His duties were assumed by Roger Duncan, formerly of a Texarkana, Texas, newspaper. Student Doug Bell spent most of the summer and the beginning of Fall Semester putting out the BYU Student Directory. William Whittaker acted as a special adviser to the Banyan.

Press Utilizes Machinery, Ink

Printed matter produced by BYU Press rumbled down from the Press' hilltop vantage point to all departments on campus. Printing of the Daily Universe and Banyan were only a small part of the massive volume of work done by the Press during the year. Class syllabuses, sports programs for BYU games and commercial work were turned out by skilled pressmen and scores of hard-working bindery girls. Work on Banyan deadlines often extended to early morning hours.

A beloved prophet has passed on, yet we face the future with strength in a new leader. We can meet the challenges of progress with an upward reach, for we meet innovation with an LDS PERSPECTIVE:

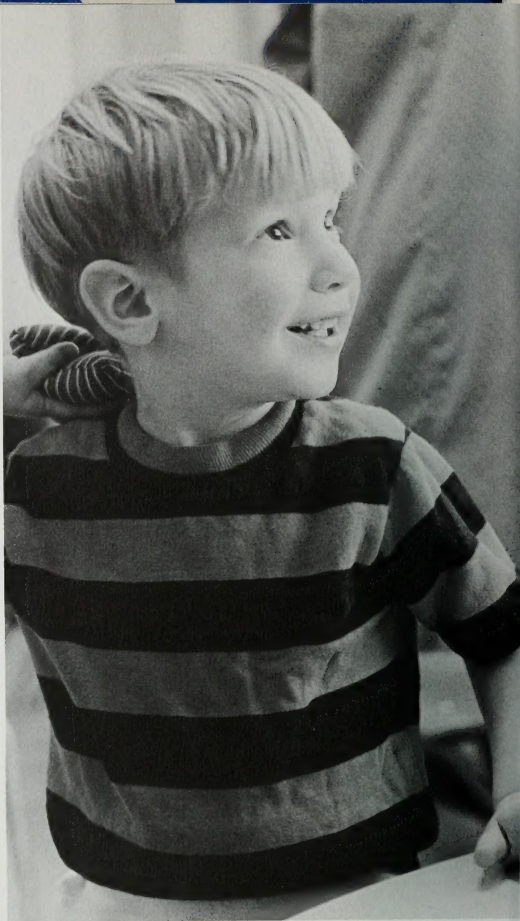

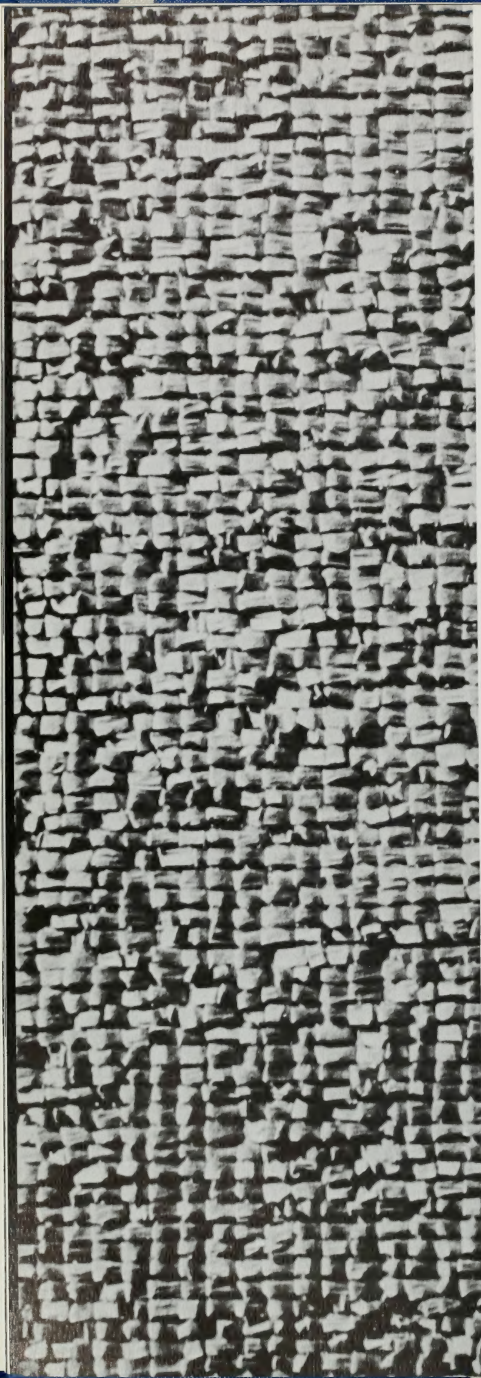

We believe in life. . .
That it is beautiful
And purposeful.

Amid the changing patterns of the world
We select the truth
And new knowledge learned
Magnifies our inherited values.

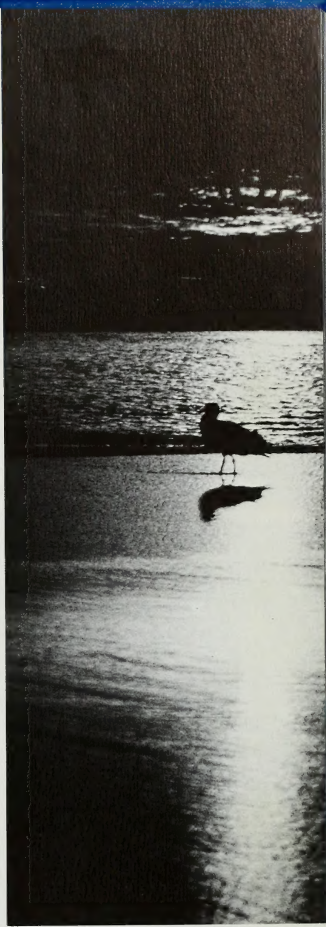

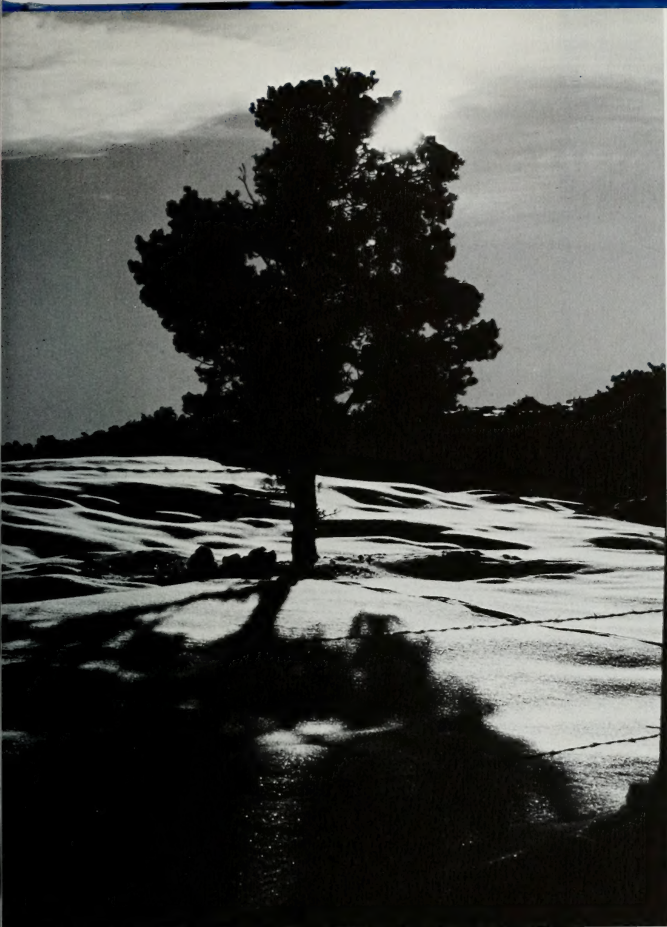

Our search of the past, the present,
and the eternities
Is rewarded with Joy. . .
The Joy of work, of faith,
The Joy of living;
With which we share and touch the souls of all mankind.

For we youth of the latter and modern days,
We have a commitment to God and we Sustain a prophet of God.

We believe in life. . .
That it is beautiful
And purposeful.

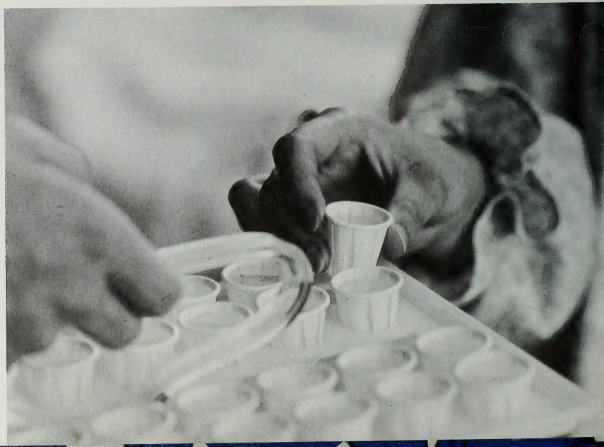

Amid the changing patterns of the world
 We select the truth
 And new knowledge learned
 Magnifies our inherited values.

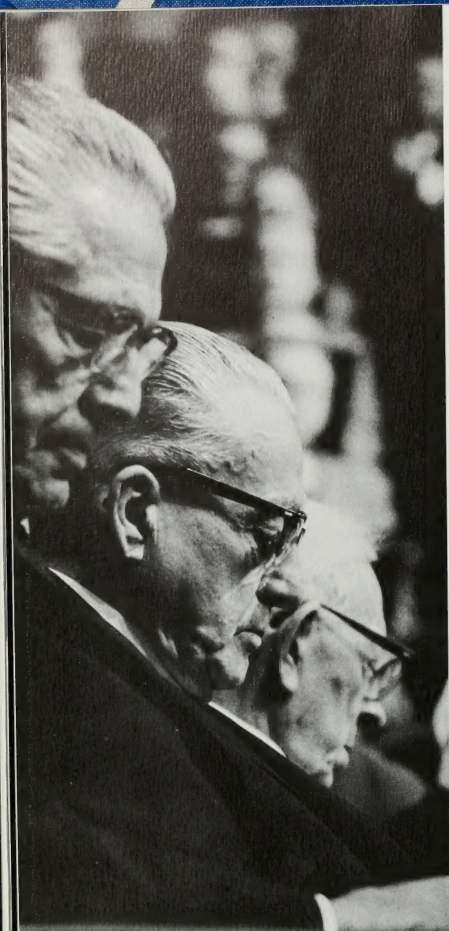

Our search of the past, the present,

Registration bewilderment clouds a student's mind, but glory surrounds almighty card distributor (above.) "Sure I need Religion, but what else should I take?" (opposite.)

Brigham Young University became the new home for approximately 7,000 neophyte freshmen and transfer students during the 1969-70 year. Herded through a week of grueling orientation activities, the new students were given a taste of life at BYU. "Y Groups" gave the oft-frustrated, always confused freshman a primary group with which to identify; orientation meetings let him see the classroom and laboratory facilities where he would study. Doubtless a big disappointment was the deletion of the lighting of the block "Y" due to extreme fire danger on Y Mountain.

Veteran Cougars registered in the Fieldhouse Sept. 18. New traffic and parking regulations foiled some who thought they "had the system down," but the elimination of the Dean's signature and fees for the first two weeks on class adds and drops made 24,000 registrations easier.

Service Accents Winter Carnival

Winter Carnival took a new twist this year, with an emphasis on service as well as fun in the snow. Held before Christmas, Dec. 8-12, the traditional snow sculpturing and dance were complemented by an attitude of making it a merrier Christmas for others.

Miss Noel Miriam Goddard and Saint Nick Jerry Meredith were chosen on their ability to entertain children, as well as by student vote. They presented programs at the Primary Children's Hospital, State Prison, and American Fork Training School.

Operation Sock-it-to-'Em brought the Christmas Spirit to underprivileged children in Philadelphia through stockings filled with goodies by BYU students. Forum speaker Dr. Leon H. Sullivan accepted the socks for the children.

The Fifth Dimension, a Scrooge contest, Christmas window painting, and musical concerts highlighted the week.

Images Color Homecoming

Glimpses of life in other eras highlighted the festivities for Homecoming 1969 at BYU. The traditional turtle trot, pie eating contest, and Founder's Day activities gave way to more exciting things on Saturday of the Oct. 27-Nov. 1 week.

Cougars went wild when the opening kickoff against Arizona turned into a phenomenal 98-yard punt return by Chris Farasopoulos. The screaming enthusiasm that wafted up from Cougar Stadium eventually coalesced into a 31-21 victory for BYU.

Somewhat more refined spirits marked the Thursday concert headlining the soft Latin sounds of the "Carnival" and the melodic "Cowsills," family singing group. Dancing in the atmosphere of five different eras was the fare for the five far-flung Homecoming Dances. Alumni, townspeople, and students traveled around the world at Fieldhouse Frolics, and were carried into the past for an "Image of an Era."

Week's Activities Laud Femininity

Appropriately scheduled to coincide with Valentine's Day celebrations, Women's Week was a specialty for the not-always-weaker sex. Climaxed by the John Davidson concert and annual Preference Ball, the week of Feb. 9-13 put womanhood in the spotlight. "I Enjoy Being a Girl" themed the activities which included a speech by the 1969 Mrs. America, Mrs. Joan Fisher. BYU coeds demonstrated their creative talents in displays of arts and crafts, sewing, and cooking during the week. When all the preferring and feminine hair-pulling finally subsided, Tom Howard emerged as the favorite of the majority of BYU coeds—he was crowned King of Hearts (Most Preferred Man) at the Ball.

Cougars Roll Out 1970 Red Carpet

All the excitement and joviality of a New Year's Eve celebration came to BYU more than a week late. Cougar New Year dawned on the Wilkinson Center Ballroom Jan. 9, and didn't subside until the wee hours of the next morning. Designed to give BYU students who had spent the Dec. 31 New Year's Eve away from Provo a chance to relive the event, Cougar New Year's version of Auld Lang Syne was as boisterous as any.

Participants received the traditional confetti and noisemakers to enliven the already light-hearted dancing sounds of the Kind of Lovin soft rock combo. A huge net of multi-colored and highly poppable balloons was released promptly at midnight to signal the start of another BYU year.

Brightly colored poppables cascade by the thousands into the greedily outstretched hands of New Year party-goers (top right). (Bottom right) A noisemaker is a dandy thing for letting the whole world know you're at the dance! (Below) Gee, a great hat, a great girl—Happy New Year!

Songfest Brings Laughter, Tears

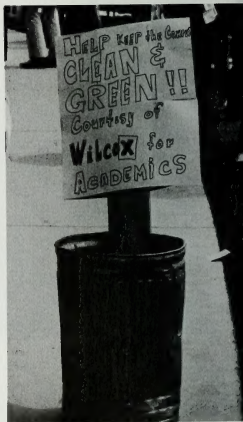

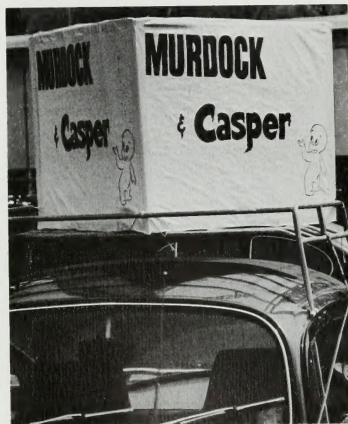

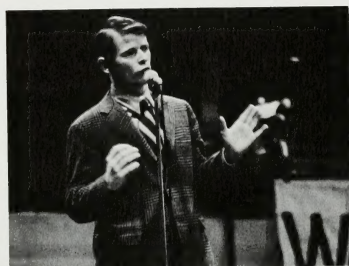

"Laughter and Tears" portrayed through the magic of song was the hallmark of the 1970 Songfest. Seven groups, finalists from a field of 17 entrants performed completely new and original songs for the program. The melodies told of the laughter and tears that have come into all types of lives down through the ages of history. Groups from housing complexes, LDS wards, and one independent entry were the finalists who sang before the Feb. 28 Fieldhouse audience.

Void Election Clouds ASBYU Future

The Wilkinson Center Fourth Floor boiled with the controversy known as Student Government. ASBYU structure came up for criticism with the abolishment of class government and the question of the efficacy of the Student Relations Office. Public relations attempts with other colleges occupied the headlines, but the crowning question about the role of student government came with the indecision in the elections, which at press time were yet not untangled.

'Go Blue' Sale Raises Funds

Cougar Days '69, highlighted by the "Go Blue" button theme, raised $2,700 for the Sports Arena Fund. The week's events included a pep rally, student assembly, and benefit concert. Promoting "Blue Day" activities, an old jail was erected in the quad for those not wearing blue.

International Mood Flavors Week

BYU was the site of a "World Carousel" during International Week Jan. 5-9. The flavor of the varied cultures of the world was demonstrated in dance, song, and display. Highlight of the week was the "World Carousel" dance, with floor shows presented by the Polynesian Club, Latin American Club, Ballroom Dance Team, and the International Folk Dancers. The Mexican students were honored for having the best exhibit.

From an original field of 160 contestants, coed Sharon Jones emerged as the 1970 Belle of the Y. After the initials "SJ" appeared next to the torchlit mountainside block Y, Peggy Christofferson and Tina Richards were announced as Belle attendants. March 2 weekend activities honoring the Belle and her court included a dance in the Wilkinson Center Ballroom and an excellent concert featuring Henry Mancini conducting the Utah Symphony. Belle Sharon exemplified the qualities of the ideal Y coed.

Bob Hope Accepts Giant Oscar

The sarcastic witticisms and social comment of Bob Hope topped the 1970 Junior Prom celebration. April 10 was christened Bob Hope Day in Provo by Mayor Verl Dixon, but the scheduled motorcade and reception had to be cancelled when it was found Hope couldn't make it to town until shortly before his performance. Hope's memorable photographer-bound cracks were greatly appreciated by the packed Smith Fieldhouse audience. BYU's own Cherlyn Hart and Ron Clark musically rounded out the Hope concert. Climax of the evening was the Junior Prom, held in three locations.

Colossal Cleanup Tops Y Day Events

The 1970 Y Day cleanup campaign branched out to include all facets of Utah Valley existence. This year, instead of concentrating cleanup on public spots, Y Day groups spread their cleansing action to their own neighborhood areas and the homes of people unable to take care of their own property. Following the facelift, hungry whitewashers and garbage gatherers consumed sloppy joes and headed for Utah Lake.

Week Fetes Polynesian Life Styles

The torch-lit festive atmosphere of Polynesia permeated campus the week of March 30-April 1. Polynesian Week combined the succulent edibles of a luau with the excitement of the Samoan fire knife dance and the Tongan fire walk. A lei-making contest saw everything from flowers to tin cans to vegetables utilized in the creation of the colorful native necklaces. The traditional Polynesian Assembly topped the week.

Commencement Marks New Beginning

The last great leveler of BYU contrasts was graduation. Personalities from every facet of campus participation met together under the roof of the Smith Fieldhouse to receive a final counsel and farewell from their leaders in education. Students who, though functioning under the same great institution, had never crossed paths during their four years' stay, now felt the close bond of comradeship in a final gathering. Then the people from Agronomy and Political Science and Elementary Education, and those from Norsemen and Spurs and Phi Kappa Phi embarked on their diverse ways, leaving BYU somehow changed by their presence.

BYU students were encouraged to use their artistic abilities to communicate their feelings to others. Since the creating person sees more and becomes sensitive to the beauty potential of things he sees, art becomes a search in worth for the creating artist. Through the myriad art media the artist communicates the gems of truth he finds—truths he probably couldn't express in words. The Festival of Mormon Art was a unique opportunity for artistic portrayal of the LDS culture. Insights from every facet of Mormon thought and existence were displayed for the purpose of communicating personal truths through art.

Communications—Key To Understanding

Communications explored the fine art of conveying meaning in the human context. Through the fields of journalism, broadcasting, and advertising, students learned the basics of communication with self and others. Journalism, utilizing the American concept of free press, was a key to comprehending the happenings in society, giving the public a background for making decisions. Broadcasting was a means for combining human creativity with mechanical techniques for the purpose of stimulating thought and a grasping the meaning of life.

'Nutcracker' Comes To Life At BYU

Tsaikovsky's enchanting "Nutcracker Ballet" was brought to BYU Jan. 9 and 10 by Ballet West and the Utah Symphony. The story of a little girl who dreams her Christmas toys come to life and lead her through a fairyland, "The Nutcracker" delighted old and young alike. William F. Christensen, artistic director of Ballet West, brought to the de Jong Concert Hall stage a regular company of 35 professional dancers augmented by 35 children with ballet experience from Salt Lake and surrounding communities. The earthiness of pagan post-harvest festivals, the spirituality of Christian rejoicing, and the European folk beliefs about animals gifted with speech highlighted the Christmas ballet fantasy.

Lyceums Spotlight Dance, Drama, Music

Six diverse Lyceums marked the 1970 year of culture. Soprano Phyllis Curtin's brilliant Oct. 8 performance was cut short when a newly cleaned stage curtain emitted fumes which made it hard for her to breathe. Oct. 27, the charm of Indonesia was brought to BYU by the Budaya Dance Troupe. They exhibited the performing arts of Bali, Java and Sundi. The Paul Taylor Dance Company interpreted modern American dance in early November. Ballet West and the Utah Symphony brought the enchanting Nutcracker to BYU as part of the post-Christmas season. Pianist Leonard Pennario thrilled the Concert Hall audience in a March performance. The Utah Symphony rounded out the Lyceum season with an evening of works by Shostakovich and Beethoven on April 10.

Male Chorus Tours Schools

Noted for the excitement and virility of its singing, the Male Chorus had a busy year. Concerts included two in collaboration with the Women's Chorus, the Male Chorus Spring Concert, and Christmas at Mid-day presentations. The repertoire varied from such campus favorites as "The Old Y Bell" to the great masterworks for male voices. Springtime took the chorus on a successful high school tour.

Women Create, Sing Own Music

Eighty women interested in vocal music comprised the 1970 edition of the BYU Women's Chorus. Although singing mostly contemporary music, the chorus repertoire ranged from the Latin mass to original works by chorus members. Members of the chorus, chosen by audition, divided their talents to sing four-part harmony. The chorus performed for Devotionals and other gatherings, and joined forces with the Male Chorus for a special concert.

With the close comraderie of singing together, the chorus members developed a deep feeling of unity. Robert Downs was the director for Women's Chorus.

Choir Lauds Moon Orbit

The 150 highly selected vocal musicians of the Oratorio Choir sang many of the important works for chorus and orchestra. Under the direction of Dr. John R. Halliday, the choir performed selections from Handel's "Messiah" and Bach's "B Minor Mass" with the Philharmonic and Symphony Orchestras. Other repertoire numbers were "King David" by Arthur Honegger and the "Faure' Requiem." At the Festival of Mormon Art in March, the choir, along with the Symphonic Band, performed "Ode to Libertad," by LaMar Barrus and "For the First Manned Moon Orbit," by Lynn Shertleff.

Chorale Sings Beat Rhymes

"A Winter Ode to Music" Dec. 10 highlighted the University Chorale singing year. Composed of 220 voices who love to sing, the chorale was directed by Clayne Robison. Chorale members ranged from music majors to people with no music experience at all. Rehearsing five hours a week, the chorale developed a repertoire of classical and modern music ranging from a fifteenth century motet by Thomas Tallis to twentieth century beat nursery rhymes by Jean Burger.

A Cappella Prepares For European Tour

The chief endeavor of the A Cappella Choir during the year was preparation for their second tour of Europe, scheduled for June and July 1970. The choir will perform for missions and concert audiences in Europe, and the itinerary includes a performance at the convention of the International Society of Music Educators to be held in Moscow, U.S.S.R.

The choir worked for perfection in anticipation of the summer tour, singing in their traditional Christmas and Spring Concerts, and Fieldhouse Frolics. Participation in the first Festival of Mormon Art was a highlight of the year.

Orchestras Play Repertoire Wide

The Philharmonic Orchestra was organized this year to give advanced students the opportunity of performing under near-professional conditions. The orchestra's eight-day winter tour of Arizona, Texas, and New Mexico won new friends for music, the orchestra, and the university. Along with the Oratorio Choir, the orchestra presented "King David" by Honegger. "Pilgrim's Progress" was a joint effort of the Opera Workshop and the Philharmonic Orchestra.

The BYU Symphony Orchestra participated in the Christmas lighting ceremony at the Salt Lake Tabernacle, shown over 25 television stations throughout the United States. The auditioned group performed a standard repertoire, dashed with such classics and new works as Beethoven's "Eroica Symphony," and "For the First Manned Moon Orbit," by Shurtleff.

Dr. Ralph G. Laycock conducted both orchestras first semester, with Lawrence Sardoni taking over second semester.

Speech Crowns

The fine arts of public speaking and communicating effectively through speech are emphasized through various university programs. As a fundamental requisite for success in such fields as personnel management, business and industrial communications, advertising and sales, teaching, public relations, and social work, the art of speaking well and understandably is widely promoted at BYU. Several speech contests offer experience in speaking, judging, and promoting within the public speaking context. The Communicative Abilitation Area deals with communicative disorders (speech, hearing, and language) in children and adults. Students may train to be teachers of the hard of hearing, audiologists, or speech therapists.

Backstagers Are Drama Backbone

From the Costume Shop comes everything from an ancient Hebrew outfit to the mod clothes of the '60s. The making of costumes, wigs, shoes, hats, beards, and armor—every bit of wearing apparel a script may call for—is supervised by designer-in-charge Sue Williams. Much of the work is done by hand by 15 expert seamstress-designers. The completely self-sufficient, year round group is considered the best in the country.

The nine crew members of the Scene Shop, under the direction of O. Lee Walker, make original sets for eight drama productions, two operas, and the repertory company each year. Construction of original furniture is a specialty.

Pure Theatre Marks 'Joan'

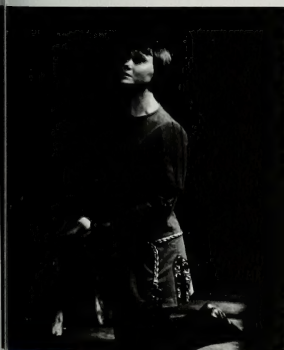

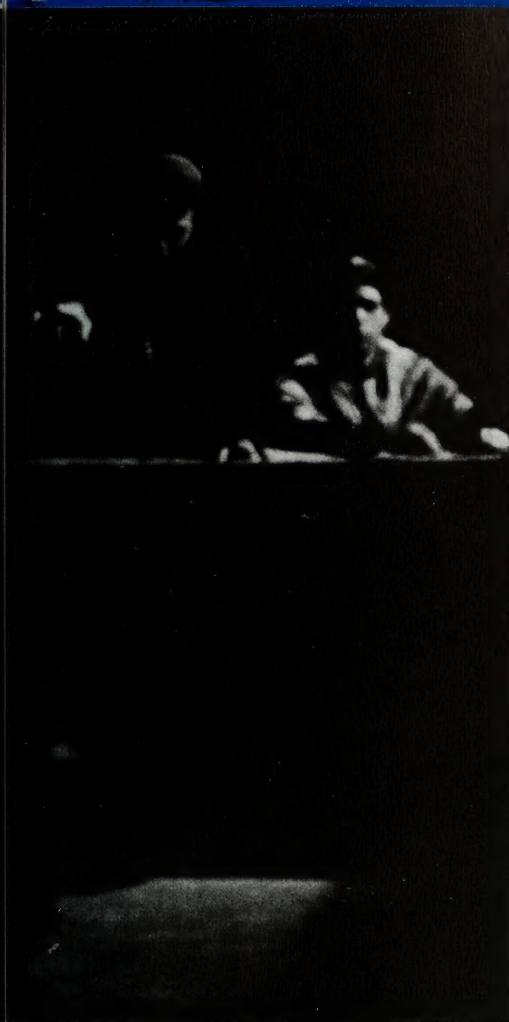

Jeanne D'Arc was burned alive in the Old Market Square in Rouen, France, in 1431. She was 19 years old, yet she united the French armies for victory.

The nobility, the terror, the old age of youth persistent in 15th Century France came to the Pardoe Drama Theatre Oct. 17-Nov. 1 in the dramatic production "Joan of Lorraine." The Atomic Age audience was guided, through the device of modern actors portraying historical characters, to a deep emotional rapport with the longsince past Inquisition France.

Author Maxwell Anderson developed his plot having actors "rehearse" the historical happenings. A minimum of scenery and historical costumes, and the relative lack of spectacular effects and formal theatrical conventions, gave a direct emotional rapport between actors and audience.

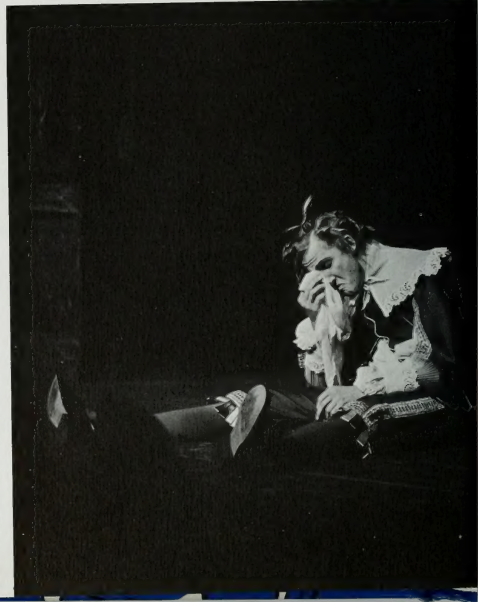

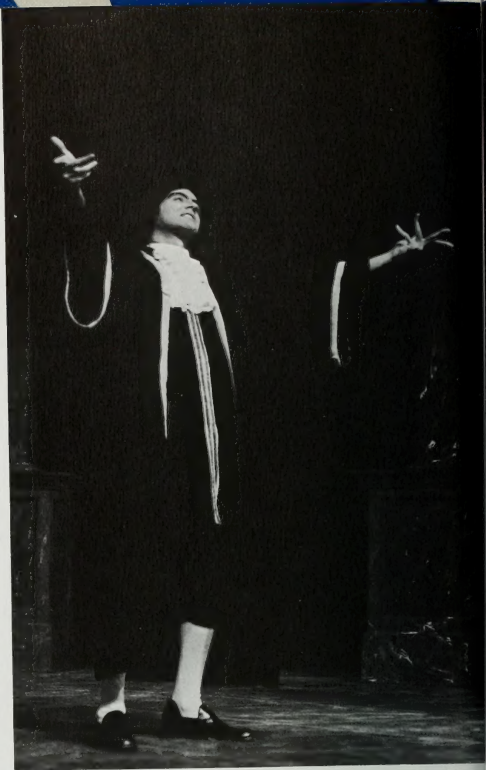

Dr. Preston R. Gledhill directed the journey from now to then. Junior Carol Thorn portrayed Joan, the shepherd girl who became general of the king's armies. Other members of the cast were Edwin L. Walker as The Inquisitor; Michael L. Flynn as Jacques D'Arc; the Dauphin, played by Brad Bailey; Scott Card, portraying Alain Chartier; Georges de Tremoille, characterized by Michael Coleman; and Robert G. Fredette as Regnault de Chartres, Archbishop of Rheims.

Steven Anderson Champlain (Father Massieu) pleads with Joan to give up her voices. The group pauses as the director interprets some of Joan's lines for her. Joan prays for guidance and strength to help her through her crisis.

All the hilarity of a romantic triangle coupled with a hypochondriac came to the Pardoe Drama Theatre Feb. 27—March 20. Moliere's "The Imaginary Invalid" brought a delightful combination of farce and humor, along with the acting-directing talents of Dr. Charles Metten. As Argan, the imaginary invalid, Dr. Metten played a man who wishes to arrange a marriage to preserve his patient-doctor relationship. However, the marriage principals balk at the idea, and then the fireworks begin.

Romance, Rain Spark '110' Play

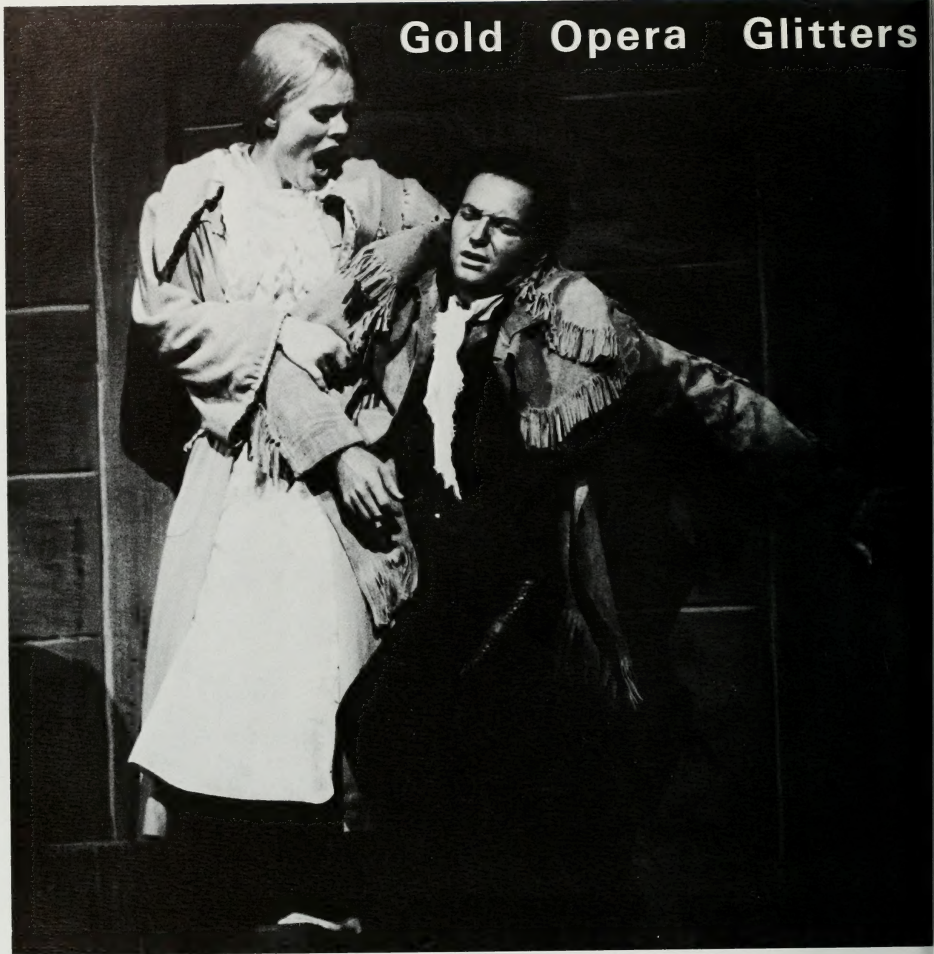

A day in the life of a drought-stricken Midwest town sizzled onto the deJong Concert Hall stage the evenings of Feb. 9-14. A con-man all the way, Neldon Maxfield as Starbuck, convinced the townspeople that all was not hopeless because he could make rain (for $100). But he had a hard time convincing Lizzie (Pamela Groo) until she began to feel that certain something for Starbuck. By curtain time the very heavens broke open to save a town from choking, a con-man from hanging, and a girl from old maidhood. Starbuck's old nag, Champion, turned in an Oscar-winning role in "110 in the Shade."

"We're gonna have rain!" chants Starbuck (right), but Lizzie, disbelieving, allows that "no one can make rain, not even you" (below). Gold Opera Glitters

The "Girl of the Golden West" came to BYU Nov. 12-15 in the form of the famous opera by Giacomo Puccini. The somewhat melodramatic story of the female saloon keeper in a one-girl mining camp delights audiences with its moments of pathos and love. Lynn Blackmun and Diane Murdock alternated in the role of Minnie, the heroine. Rolando Gonzalez and Don Gottfredson played the villain-turned-lover Ramerrez. Sheriff Jack Rance was portrayed by Clayne Robison and Lowell Murdock. Evan Call was the bartender, and Clinton Johnson played the Wells Fargo agent in the Gold Rush era opera.

'Jo' Combines Songs, Laughter

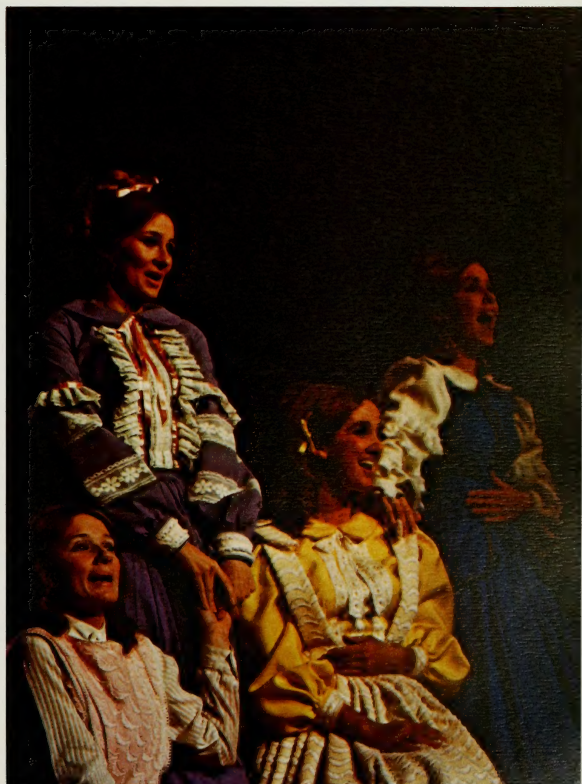

The world of Louisa May Alcott filled the Pardoe Drama Theatre Dec. 4-19. "Jo," an adaptation of Miss Alcott's beloved "Little Women" was a bright addition to the BYU Christmas season. The happy musical comedy told the story of the four March sisters, Jo, Meg, Amy, and Beth, and the way they learned to become mature young ladies in the face of hard times, sadness, and death.

Patricia Cummings played the title role of the lovely Jo, who is gradually transformed from a bookish tomboy into a poised young lady. The eldest sister, Meg, was portrayed by Loretta Anderson. LeeAndra Marsh took the part of Amy. The cheery sister Beth, who added a sad note to the play with her death, was characterized by Beckie Davidson.

Marmee, the girls' mother, was aptly portrayed by Elaine Herman. Clinton Johnson played Laurie, while Nick Pond took the part of Brooke. The brusque Aunt March was Janean Hanks.

A light-hearted chorus and supporting cast helped make "Jo" a happy, heartwarming Christmas treat for BYU theatre-goers.

Cougars Grab Third In WAC

BYU, under coach Tom Hudspeth, celebrated the centennial year of football in a grand and winning fashion. Led by All-American and All-WAC Jeff Slipp and Mel Olson, and aided by the running of the nation's best return man, Chris Farasopoulos, the Cougars bounced back for a 6-4 record. And this was in a year that was supposedly for rebuilding. The Cougar fans were thrilled by four home victories out of five, and the winning back of the traditional wagon wheel from Utah State with a 21-3 victory at Logan.

Keys to success were the overpowering defense of the Cougar front four, with Jeff Slipp leading the charge. Anchoring the defense was a strong corps of linebackers led by Rich Dixon and supported by defensive backs such as Paul Sutorius, Larry Echohawk, and Farasopoulos. Also to be figured in the success story was the come-to-life effort of the offense, fired up by the passing of quarterback Marc Lyons, the running of Kip Jackson, and a strong offensive line led by center Mel Olson. This, plus enthusiastic spirit from Cougar fans made centennial football great in Cougarland in 1969-70.

The Cougars of BYU, led by Coach Stan Watts, this year's president of the National Basketball Coaches, fought through their toughest physical and mental season in many years. Handicapped by having ten road games in their first fourteen, and the varied protests — especially at Colorado State and New Mexico — the hoopsters proved that on a given night they could walk anyone off the court! The biggest win was an 87-72 blasting of WAC champions Texas-El Paso. Also impressive was the two-point overtime loss to nationally ranked New Mexico State. Among the leaders for the Cougars this year were Doug Howard, who ranked high in the nation in freethrows; the gentle giant Paul Ruffner, who put in 37 points against Georgia; and Scott Warner, who pulled down 27 rebounds against Texas Tech. Teamwork, however, made everything fall into place.

BYU Yell Leaders Enrich Team, Spectator Spirit

The Cougars of 1969-70 were cheered to victory by the fiery, enthusiastic charges of the yell leaders. Fan spirit was kept especially high by cheerleader Rocky Kuonen, who brought havoc on sorry opponents.

Cougar Matmen Place First In WAC

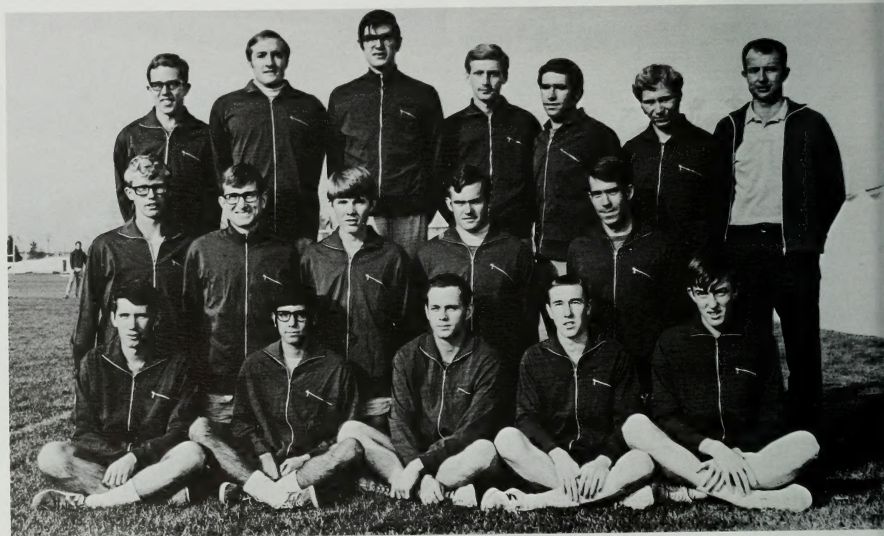

The BYU matmen got off to a bad start, but wound up the season in fine fashion. The team poured on the power to win the Western Athletic Wrestling Championship over defending champs Utah. The year's schedule included some of the top-ranked teams in the nation. Leading the way for the Cougars were WAC winners Chuck Chambers at 126 pounds; Glen Takahashi at 134 pounds; and Rondo Fehlberg at 150 pounds. The other members of the young, well-balanced squad and these standouts made it a profitable season.

BYU's potent track team gets a real boost every fall from the cross country season. This year the harriers, under Coach Sherald James, were no exception. The team started the season by winning the Utah State Invitational, with Pekka Vasala grabbing the top honors. Next they handled Utah State, with Dave Hindley leading the way. The harriers then traveled to the Idaho State Invitational, where five schools were competing. BYU again walked away with top honors as miler Sam Francis took the race. Then it was off to the WAC Championship — by far the toughest contests of the season — but the Cougars ran to a second-place finish behind WAC champs Texas-El Paso to complete their big season.

Practice Keys Swim Success

The end of water polo season doesn't signal a rest time for BYU tankers. Practice seems to be the key behind the success of Cougar swimmers, and in 1970 Coach Walt Cryer used this key to open the door to a very successful season. The swimmers beat every team in the conference before looking forward to the WAC finals and NCAA finals. This year's swimmers were led by two-time all-American Fred Baird, who dominates in the 200 butterfly and has never been beaten in a dual meet, and by freestyler Tom Fairbank. Another great strength was the added points of divers Jim Whytlaw and Cyril Buscke. The swimming season was highlighted by victories over Utah by identical scores.

Y Ruggers Rank Sixth

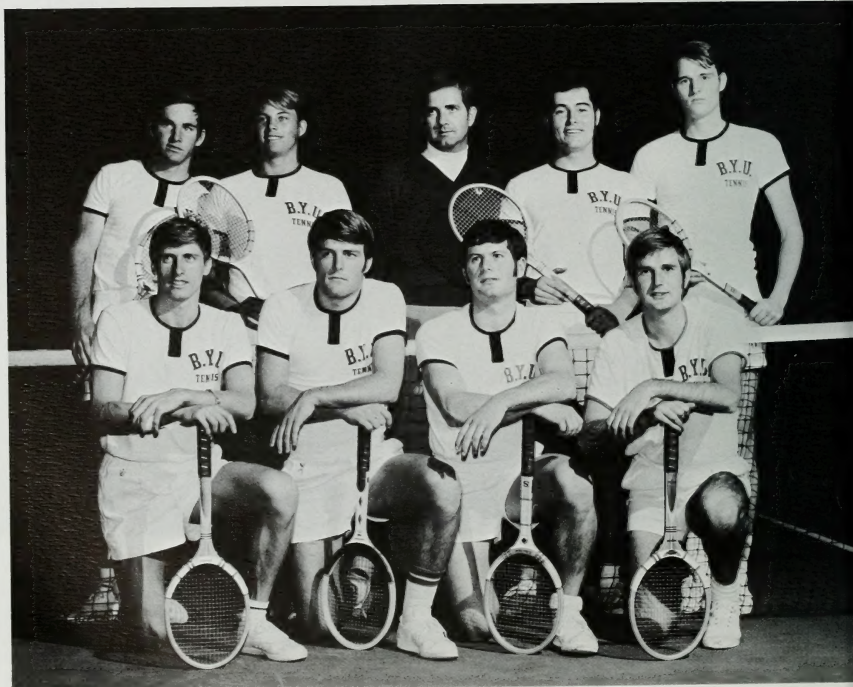

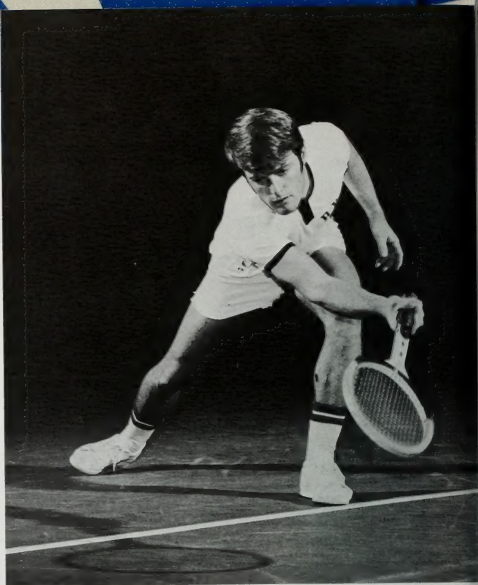

BYU's hard-hitting rugby team again reaped the benefits of hard work and dedication, compiling a perfect winning record in 1970. Coached by former rugby player John Seggar, the Cougars tried to improve on their national ranking of sixth. Highlights of the season were victories over the San Francisco Rugby Club and the Air Force. The team was strengthened by the playing of former CCH star Joe Vakilala and exceptional squad depth.

Racketmen Guard WAC Title Crown

BYU's defending WAC Championship tennis team sparked another great season under the leadership of Coach Wayne Pearce. Top man for the Cougars was All-American and former Davis Cupper Zdravko Mincek, who won the tough Rice Invitational in which the Cougars placed second. Balance and team depth keyed the 1970 Cougar version of tennis. Strong performances from Mincek, Larry Hall, and others produced a winning season, with the only losses at the hands of third-ranked Trinity College. Defense of the WAC crown highlighted the racketmen's year.

Linksters Grab Far Western Tilt

The BYU linksters under the able coaching of Karl Tucker again brought together champions to form a winning combination. The 1970 squad boasted three past Northern California Golf Association junior champions including Don Hawken, Bob Lopic, and Ray Leach, who was an NCAA second place finisher and third team All-American. The Cougars tasted sweet success, defeating all their opponents and placing fourth in the Fresno Classic. The outstanding highlight of the season was the Cougars' come-from-behind victory in the prestigious Far Western Intercollegiate Golf Championship. Held at Pasa Tiempo Golf Club in Santa Cruz, California, the 1970 win was the first for the Cougar linksters. Leading the victory was All-American Lane Bennett (second place), with Ray Leach finishing one stroke behind him. The linksters continued golfing in post-season contests in both the WAC and the NCAA, hoping to equal or better last year's third place finish in the big NCAA Tournament.

Cougars Nab Fourth In NCAA Indoors

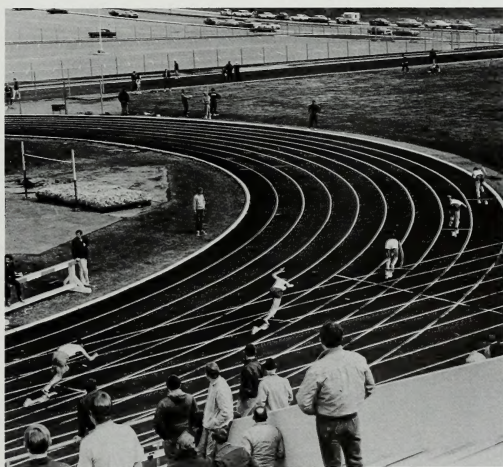

In 1970 the Cougars again dominated the track and field picture in the Rockies, and also ranked high in the national ratings. Coach Clarence Robison and assistant coaches James and Hirschi led the Cougars to some big moments during the season. No doubt the most impressive was the team's fourth place finish in the NCAA indoor finals at Detroit, where Cougar high jumper Ken Lundmark won the high jump. Also placing in the meet were Stan Bergeson with a third in the 1000 yard run and Steve Bergeson with a fourth in the 880 yard run, and help from Alarotu in the pole vault. The team anticipated an exciting outdoor season with Ralph Mann opening his defense of his NCAA crown in the 440 yard intermediate hurdles and his American record. Team effort promised wins.

Gymnasts Close With 7-5 Season

Under the leadership of Coach Bruce Morgenegg and former Cougar and NCAA great Dennis Ramsey, the Cougar gymnasts completed a successful 7-5 season. Big wins were scored over Denver, Utah, Arizona State, with a near upset of Colorado State. This year's stars included Dan Davis, Don Ferre, Dave Watters, and JC transfer Raleigh Wilson. The WAC Championships at Albuquerque and the NCAA Championships at Philadelphia rounded out the gymnastics campaign.

Soccer Team Battles Free Berlin Players

Again in 1970, the BYU soccer teams just kept on winning. All three teams ranked high in their leagues. Perhaps most impressive was the "A" squad, led by the coaching of Danish star Dan Madsen. Most of the squad was composed of foreign players who really know the game. During the fall campaign, the "A" team held down first place against two powerhouse teams from Salt Lake City. Spring looked much the same, highlighted by a 2-1 win over top competitors, the Incas. Team leaders were Bill Forrest, Horst Mastag, Gert Jensen, and Carlos Cordova. Season highlights included a big match against the University of Free Berlin and against powerful Air Force

BYU Bowlers Host Best Ball Tournament

The BYU keglers, under the leadership of Coach Shafter Bown, again proved that practice pays off. The men's team (defending champions of the tough six-team Intermountain group) took a high second in the standings. The women's team did likewise. A highlight of the season was a first place finish for the men in the 32-team New Mexico tournament. Marty Holland led the Cougars to the victory. Then came the Best Ball Tournament at BYU where 32 teams were entered and the Cougars won again. Standouts in the competition were Tom Sears and Marijane Nielson. Unity and real team effort were the key to the keglers' success as they prepared for conference finals and the big meet against a strong competitor, Montana, at the end of the season.

Head Coach Glen Tuckett prepared his baseball team for defense of their WAC Northern Division crown with the help of former Pittsburgh Pirates star Vernon Law. The squad displayed good depth and experience, but had to rely on a young pitching staff. This was where Coach Law helped immensely. Leading the Cougars were hard-hitting Doug Howard, co-captains Lee Berge and Richard Fairbanks, and Dane Iorg. Big BYU victories were an 8-4 win over number one-ranked Southern California, and a 15-10 win over Chapman College, one of the nationally-ranked small college teams. NCAA finals topped the year.

Freshman Teams Excell

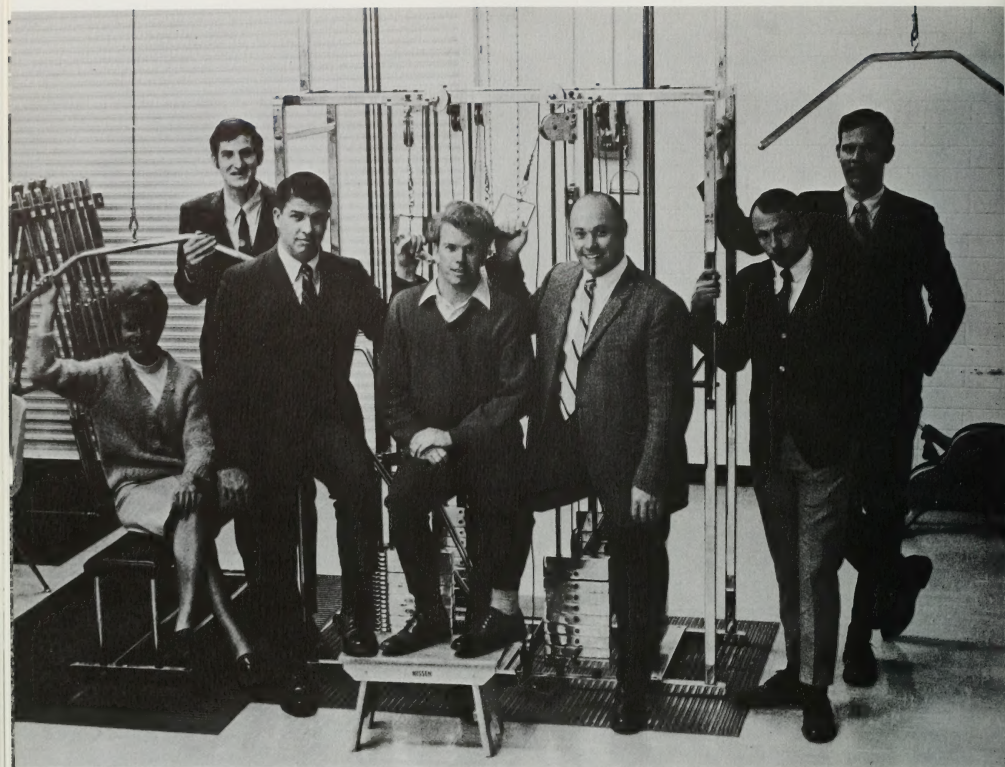

Freshman teams again proved that the BYU sports program is strong preparation for Varsity competition. The freshman gridders fought to an even 2-2 season with an exceptional last-minute victory over Ricks College. The squad was led by the passing of David Coon and the catching and running of Golden Richards. The frosh basketball team dribbled and shot to a winning season led by a strong first five. Standouts included ex-Olympian Kresimir Cosic from Yugoslavia.

'Murals Offer Competition

The desire to compete, which isn't fulfilled for many through intercollegiate athletic programs, was provided for in the men's and women's intramural program at BYU. Sports ranged from flag football, basketball, track and softball, to many co-ed sports such as bowling and tennis. Even checkers and chess were included. Fun for all was the word as Gary Palmer and staff added to the program with Fite Nite and Turkey Trot.

Temple To Grace Valley

Glints of early autumn sunshine played upon gold shovels as General Authorities and members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints gathered to break ground for the new Provo Temple.

Designed to serve the members of some 30 stakes in central Utah, including the ten BYU stakes, the edifice will reach 175 feet into the air and have an 118-foot spire.

President Hugh B. Brown of the First Presidency presided at the ceremony, with President Nathan Eldon Tanner conducting. The powerful "The Spirit of God Like a Fire Is Burning" echoed into Utah Valley as it was sung by a chorus of priesthood bearers from the 30 stakes. Following the benediction by President Alvin R. Dyer of the First Presidency, golden shovels turned the sod where thousands of Utah Valley people will enjoy the blessings of God.

Assemblies Cite Current Affairs

Weekly forum and devotional assemblies offered diversified speakers and activities. Admired LDS speakers appeared, such as General Authorities Paul H. Dunn, Marion G. Romney, and Richard L. Evans, Church Relief Society President Belle S. Spafford, and Dr. C. Terry Warner, director of the BYU Honors Program. Forum featured the Utah Symphony, columnist Ann Landers, physicist, Dr. Herman Kahn, a Founder's Day program, and various student assemblies.

Pearl Makes Meals Pleasant

BYU Food Services produce not only good food, but a lovable lady to brighten the day and your appetite. Her name is Pearl Smith, and everyone—yes everyone loves her. She can be found in the mornings at the cash register in the Wilkinson Center Snack Bar selling a breakfast orange to a football player and admonishing “Do well on that test, Bill.” Or she may be seeing that Cafeteria patrons are enjoying their meal and ask, “How is your wife today, professor?” But wherever Pearl is found, she has a warm smile and a cheery word for grind-ridden students. Even though Cannon and Deseret Center have the same Food Services food, they lack the darling of the Wilkinson Center—Pearl Smith.

Alumni Maintain Aspen Camp

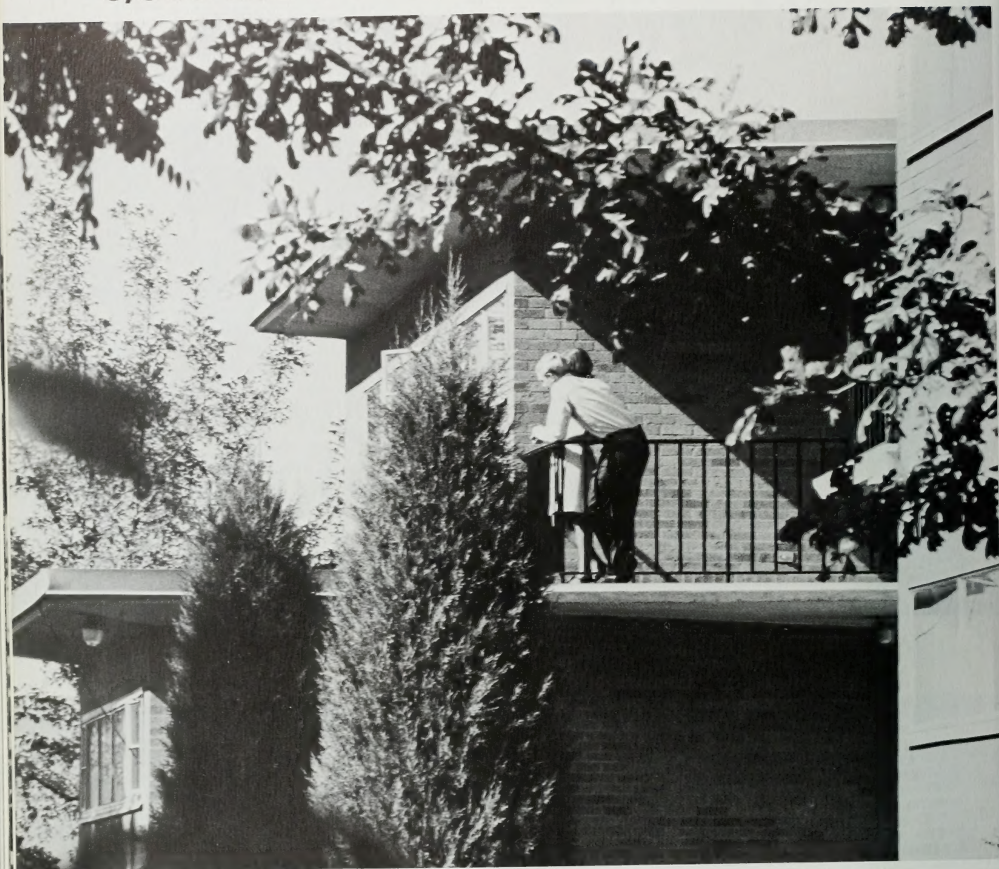

The BYU Alumni Association teamed up with Travel Study to plan "Osaka and Beyond," an 18-day summer fling to the Orient. A visit to Expo '70 will highlight the coming adventure. In addition, the alumni association served present Y students with career seminars and meeting facilities at the Alumni House. The university benefitted from alumni-sponsored fund-raising programs and student recruiting. Former students received information and tickets to Homecoming, and access to Aspen Grove Camp.

5,000 Lead 'Cubicle' Existence

BYU residence halls tenants found life "in the cubicle" sometimes hysterical, often tight, always peopled. Although girls living in Heritage Halls found a semblance of family life with "real live kitchens," Helaman and Deseret Towers veterans ate in cafeterias and ironed in shifts (if then.) Emotional uplift in an otherwise bleak existence came from unbelievably zany fellow-dwellers and a helping hand from dorm parents. Letters from home, grabbed hungrily, helped.

Students find the location of Heritage Halls, just below the mountains, gives ample opportunity for studying nature (above). (Near opposite) Residence Halls provide facilities for improving the student's social life, his athletic prowess, and his direction along the narrow corridor of life. (Far opposite) Most of all, the student living on campus finds he can discover the uniqueness of many individuals and of himself.

The Division of Continuing Education truly followed the motto "The World is Our Campus." Operating under the philosophy that education should continue beyond four years and beyond the confines of the Provo campus, the division encompassed the areas of Travel Study, Special Courses and Conferences, Evening Classes, and Home Study.

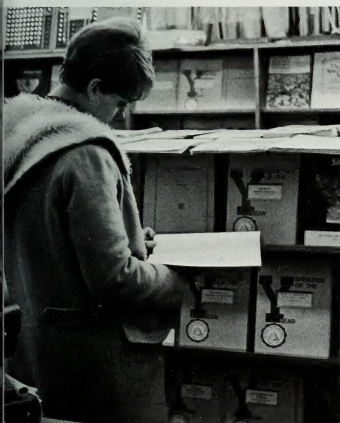

The Brigham Young campus literally went world-wide, with study tours being conducted in such places as Madrid, Spain; Grenoble, France; Salzburg, Austria; and the ancient city of Jerusalem.

Special Courses and Conferences gave the student or member of the Provo community an opportunity to pursue his own interests. Speed-reading, Personal Safety for Women, Skiing, and a Group Counseling Workshop were among the varied possibilities for learning in the program.

Evening classes made it possible for housewives and businessmen, as well as Cougars, to further their education in myriad subject areas. The Department of Home Study brought many of the regular BYU curriculum courses to the privacy and comfort of the home, to aid scholars to further their educations.

Department Widens Study Horizons

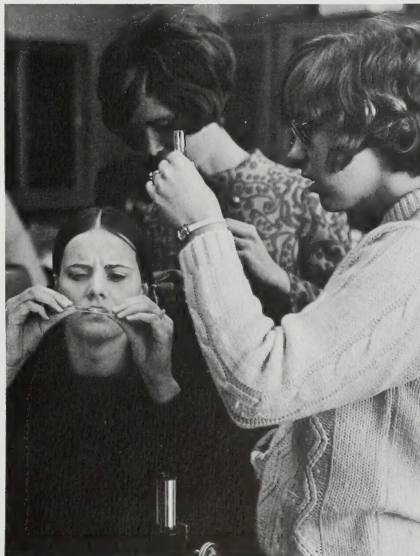

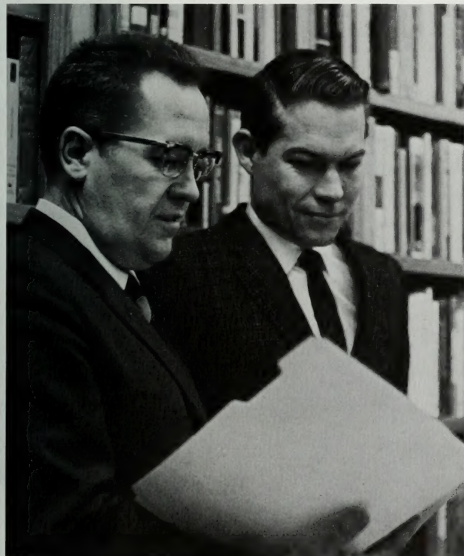

Honors Participants Combine Study, Fun

Students demonstrating a high level of academic and extracurricular attainment participated in the activities of the Honors Program. Under the direction of Professors Terry Warner and Duane Dudley (and Richard Poll fall semester) the program promoted social as well as intellectual growth in its members. Honors students met for study in the Honors Reading Room of the library, for extending their horizons in segments of the Agora lecture series, and for parties.

The Honors Reading Room, located on the fourth floor of the Clark Library, offers quiet study space to the honors student, along with plenty of reference volumes (left). Lab Facility Squares Skyline Perched hulkingly atop one of the main thoroughfares leading to BYU, the skeleton of the John A. Widtsoe Life Sciences Building took on its form. Scheduled to house the offices, classrooms, and laboratories of the Departments of Agricultural Economics, Agronomy, Animal Science, Bacteriology, Botany, Zoology and Entomology, Biochemistry, and Horticulture, the eight-story structure eventually will be connected by three passageways to the new Thomas L. Martin Classroom Building. The two-building unit heralded rich opportunities for significant strides in the scientific fields.

ELWC Remains Mecca of BYU

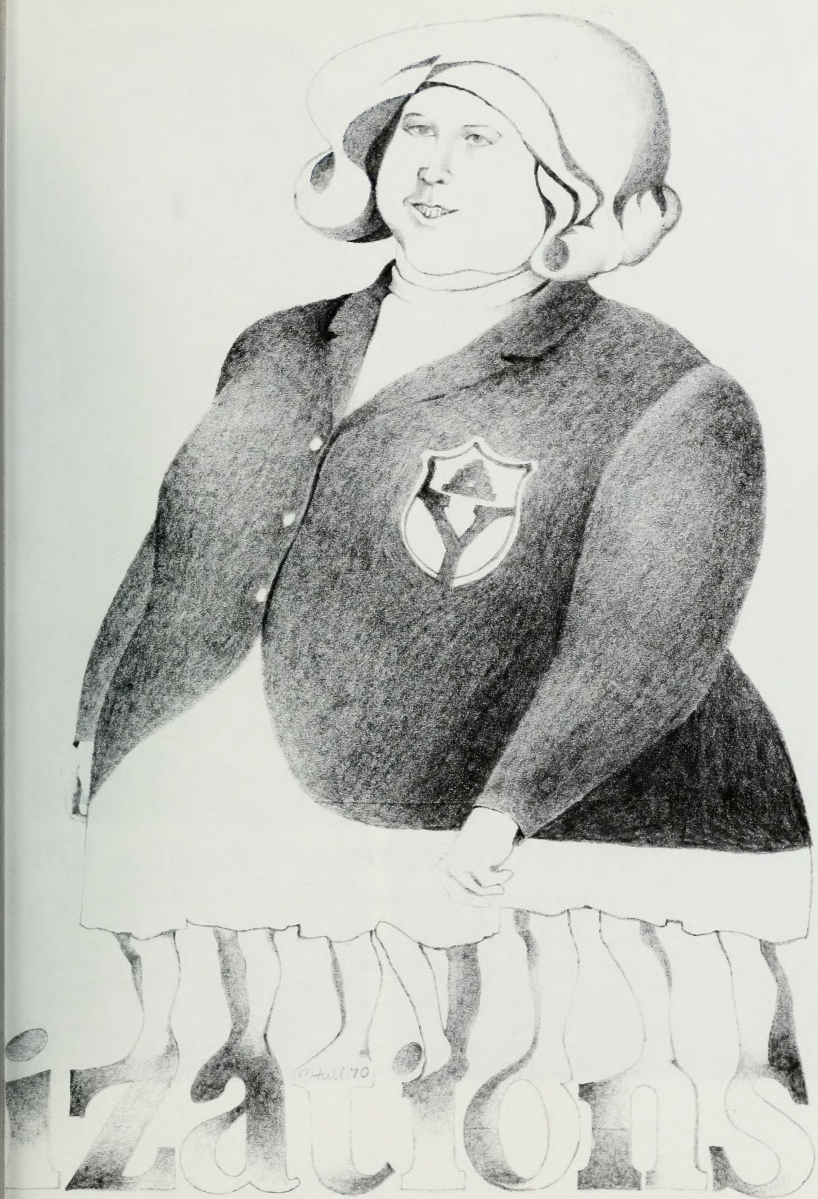

The Wilkinson Center was a one-stop center for all types of campus activities. Aside from housing numerous classrooms and meeting rooms, the center offered food, recreation, and other facilities. Such conveniences as the campus lost and found, a branch of the U.S. Post Office, and a barbershop helped make the ELWC the mecca of the BYU campus. The sixth floor Skyroom offered good food and a panoramic view of Provo and the mountains. The stereo listening rooms, art gallery, hobby center, and games center offered creative outlets to suit the taste of every type of student.

Organ

Wye Interprets Campus Life

Creative minds behind the pages of Wye Magazine are Ann Doty, Charles Kimper, Camilla Willson and Editor Laurel Cole.

Wye magazine was a commentary on student life and the BYU mood and experience. The twice-yearly, 72-page literary creation combined photographic and word imagery to form a journalistic picture of life. An effort to coordinate photography with specific writing was incorporated into the 1970 Wye format. A theme of "People and Places" widened the magazine's scope to include the great diversity of life's moments related to the campus life. Student work written for students made Wye a sensitive reflection of current thought and endeavor.

Air Force ROTC Trains Leaders

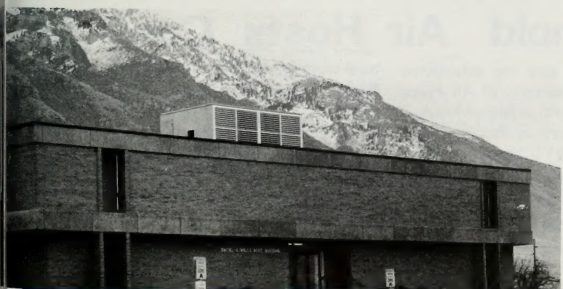

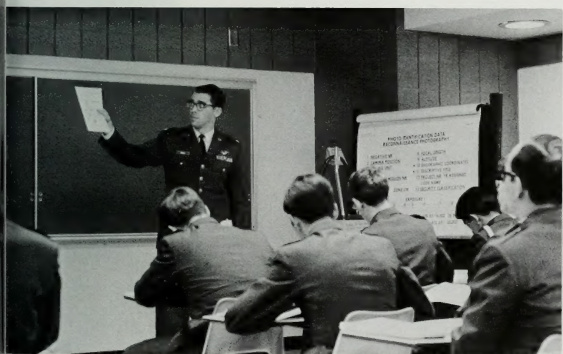

Air Force ROTC cadets learned leadership abilities which prepared them to be officers in the U.S. Air Force. Freshmen and sophomores spent one hour per week in the classroom studying military systems, as well as another hour on the drill field. Juniors and seniors took a three-hour class in history, space science, and management. In addition, seniors participated in the Flight Instruction Program to earn their private pilot's wings preparatory to flight school. Russell Whittaker was named Outstanding AFROTC Cadet and spent three weeks in India.

BYU Arnold Air Hosts Conclave

Arnold Air Society was the established professional honorary fraternity of Air Force ROTC cadets. The 58 AAS members worked for increased development in social, service, and professional areas. BYU hosted the Area H-1 Conclave in February at the Hotel Utah in Salt Lake. The culmination of months of hard work, the conclave demonstrated to Air Force officials from around the nation the efficiency of the Bernard F. Fisher (BYU) squadron. AAS cosponsored the Red Cross Blood Drive, Military Ball, and projects at American Fork Training School. AAS truly advanced air and space age citizenship.

Angels Support Air Force

A service-cultural unit of the Air Force ROTC, the Angels of BYU contributed to the welfare of the school, community, and country. This year the BYU Angel Flight won the "Outstanding Angel Flight" trophy in competition with flights from several other universities. Angel members attended a drill meet in Disneyland and a national convention in New Orleans. They were strong supporters of service projects on campus and conducted their yearly blood drive. As part of their new Footprints of Freedom program, Angels and cadets performed for area high schools and toured California.

Military Science Classes Mold Officers

Participation in the ARMY ROTC program trained the college man to be an effective Army officer after graduation. Although 1970 was only the second year of Army ROTC operation at BYU, the campus organization was already the second largest in the western United States. Weekly classes and a leadership training lab gave cadets opportunities to develop citizenship, leadership and an exemplary image. Cadets visited high schools in the area to promote the Army ROTC program, helped plan the Military Ball, and participated as honor guardsmen in flag ceremonies. Junior-year cadets were assigned to six-week summer camps to round out their training.

The 42 girls of the Army Sponsor Corps served the Army ROTC Cadets and the university. Organized in 1968 as an auxiliary service unit to the campus Army ROTC, the Sponsor Corps ushered at assemblies and football games, and manned voting booths. A special assignment was assisting members of the Utah State Legislature during a visit of that body to the BYU campus. The outstanding event of the Sponsor Corps year was the elegant Military Ball, held in April in conjunction with all the armed forces groups.

Alpha Phi Omega Finds Ugliest Man

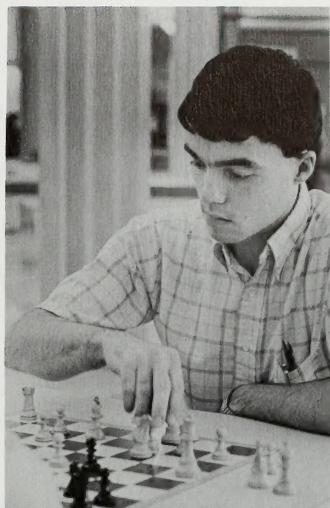

Giving young men in Scouting an opportunity to continue their service activities while in college, Alpha Phi Omega stood for friendship, leadership, and service. Again in 1970 the fraternity sponsored the Ugly Man On Campus contest as part of the Campus Chest Fund effort. Over $2500 was raised for Primary Children's Hospital and American Fork Training School. The BYU chapter of the largest fraternity in the United States served the school by ushering at Forum and Devotional assemblies and manning the information booth. Proceeds from the club's stadium chair rentals went toward a Youth Leadership scholarship fund to further the Scouting cause.

Frosh Honor Top Athletes

The Freshman Class officers worked to promote enthusiasm and unity within the largest class on campus. In spite of battles for and against the abolition of class government, the frosh kept up a lively schedule of activities for newcomers to BYU. Sheer numbers made the frosh formidable contenders for trophies in Class Competition Week. The youngsters showed their dislike of the usual put-downs by participation in the Basement Uprising in the Wilkinson Center. The Snickering Snowflake Symposium at Sundance was a treat for frosh winter sports-lovers. A commendable achievement was the Athletic Banquet in March, honoring the exemplary young men of BYU and such greats as Billy Casper and Harmon Killebrew.

Honored at the Athletic Awards Banquet were Gene Fullmer, Billy Casper, L. Jay Sylvester, Vernon Law, Elder Marion D. Hanks, Frosh Pres. David Patton. (below). Sophs Sponsor Cotillion

The Sophomore Class organized to provide activities for class members and the entire student body that would not otherwise be sponsored. Although serving in the last year class government will exist at BYU, the Sophomore Class officers worked diligently to carry out a Sports Car Rallye, Hawaiian Luau, and a Ski Party. An autumn accomplishment was the Mason Williams Concert, featuring the lovely Jennifer. American Week was an effort to promote exposure to authoritative, constructive discussion on contemporary social problems. Military, racial, and college conflicts were studied in depth. Leadership and character development was emphasized.

Junior Class Brings Bob Hope To Campus

By far the biggest event of the year for the junior class was the Junior Prom-Bob Hope Concert April 10. Hope kept the audience sewed up completely with his cracks about Spiro Agnew's golf game and the Payson perfume industry. In an attempt to unify the students of the junior class, participation in Competition Days were encouraged. Mudbowl football and relays livened the class competition. Sponsoring a needy family at Christmastime gave juniors a chance to work for the welfare of others, and to make others happy. An IBM dance paired juniors with partners of other classes and interests to provide an evening of fun and the unexpected. Firesides and participation in American Week events rounded out the last year of formal junior class organization on the Brigham Young campus.

Arizonans Hoop, Holler At Stomps

Arizonans banded together in traditional manner to provide opportunities for students interested in western music to attend stag dances. Active promoters of Western Week and such things as cowboy boots and hats, the Arizonans sponsored weekly dances and firesides. The special comradeie inherent in the whopping group was sparked by the annual steak fry at Kelly's Grove in May. Arizona Club members were instrumental in getting the Social Office to present an increasing number of dances and events with a western flavor.

Not just native Arizonans, but lovers of good Western fun and music from all over the world belonged to Arizona Club. They were led by officers President Larry Lee, Secretary Shawna Romney, and Vice President Eric Heap (left).

In an effort to improve the image of BYU, the 30 girls gave fruit, cookies, and tickets and passes to school activities to the visiting competitors. In addition, the club members bettered themselves through parties, exchanges with other clubs, and attendance at several plays and concerts during the year. Auno girls were loyal supporters of BYU and her activities through 1970.

Blue Key Men Channel Tickets

The betterment of student life and the maintenance of academic excellence were the goals of Blue Key in 1970. Composed of 35 young men considered leaders in scholastic, religious, and student government activities, Blue Key offered opportunities for self improvement and the improvement of several facets of campus life. Again in 1970, the chapter took care of the distribution of tickets and passes to Y football and basketball games. Monthly firesides, a Winter Party, and a breakfast for graduating seniors rounded out the 1970 Blue Key agenda.

Members of Campioe Ab Sodalitas considered themselves "champions of brotherhood." The 50 BYU men lived up to their creed by stressing comradeship as well as spiritual and intellectual advancement through service. CAS worked with Auno in welcoming athletes from other schools to the campus. Intramurals participation was a year-long experience for CAS men, and the group modestly doubled all other scores to win the Clubs Week competition. The annual Roman Toga Party highlighted the CAS year.

"...If there is anything virtuous, lovely, or of good report, or praiseworthy, we seek after these things." Chi Triellas culture unit sought to live up to this goal by participating in a wide variety of school-sponsored and club activities. A Halloween exchange with Samuel Hall Society, constructing a float for Homecoming, slugging it out in the Powder Puff football game, and blending vocally for Songfest helped the members of Chi Tri enrich their lives in many areas.

Recruitment Big For Cougar Club

The 1970 edition of Cougar Club carried on the tradition of building the image of BYU through promotion of athletic, cultural, and academic programs. Assisting the athletic departments in recruiting athletes and sponsoring two money-raising ballgames boosted athletics. The Million-Dollar Project, in cooperation with University Development was a great asset to the school. The inception of the Student Academy for extracurricular educational opportunities was a fine Cougar Club contribution to Y academics.

Y Spirit Carried By Cougarettes

The Cougarettes, BYU's special precision marching unit, carried enthusiasm and Cougar spirit into halftimes at football and basketball games. The excellent group gained praise and compliments on the fluidity and beauty of their routines before crowds assembled at colleges all over the country. Well-received at the Quaker State Tournament in Philadelphia, the Cougarettes were asked to march several times for the basketball fans watching those matches. Only the CSU protesters seemed to lack the admiration shown the marchers.

Experiencing their first complete year of organization, the 39 coeds belonging to Eos Agapae worked to "achieve excellence through genuine concern." Following the club symbol, the sun, the girls tried to give of themselves, as the sunshine radiates outward. Firesides and social gatherings helped members develop worthwhile goals and expanded sisterhood. A Zodiac Exchange with Young Men and competition in intramurals highlighted the Eos Agapae year. "Dawning of perfect love" (the meaning of the words Eos Agapae) was the club motto.

IK's Spark School Spirit

The Gold Y Chapter of Intercollegiate Knights had as its purpose promoting and maintaining the college spirit and traditions of BYU. In charge of lighting the block "Y" five times a year, the IK's helped keep the spirit of the Y burning all year long. Again this year, IK's sponsored the Belle of the Y contest and served the school by ushering, conducting campus tours, selling programs for athletic events, and guarding the block "Y" from U. of U. students.

Clambake Tops Samuel Hall Year

Men aspiring to the mutual exchange of ideas, stimulation of thought, and personal growth made up the membership of Samuel Hall Society. Firesides, intramurals participation, and a number of unique social activities characterized the society's fulfillment of their aims. An authentic New England clambake started the year out right and was followed by such events as co-sponsoring the float that won "Most Humorous" in the Homecoming parade. Both wit and brawn came into play with the Mission Impossible Party in March.

Sportswomen Visit Lake Mead

Striking a balance between the physical, spiritual, academic, cultural and social aspects of life, Sportswomen embarked on activities throughout the year designed with variety in mind. A winter ski trip at Park City was balanced with a February fireside; a Sportswomen traditions night offset exchanges with other clubs. Indisputable highlight of the year was a Lake Mead water skiing trip in May.

Forty sophomore girls interested in serving BYU and the Provo community formed the service club Spurs. Ushering at home football games, manning BYU voting booths, and bringing programs and goodies to the State Hospital highlighted the Spur year. Nov. 21-22 the BYU chapter hostessed the Spurs Regional Convention, with six schools and 125 girls participating. Firesides and exchanges with other clubs were some of the club's fun activities.

Vakhnom Girls Pursue Beauty

Taking their cue from their club motto "To seek beauty within," Vakhnom members rounded out the year with firesides, fashion shows, cultural evenings, and sports activities. They sponsored a money-raising event to send a Guatemalan family to the Arizona Temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. A highlight of the year was construction of the 1969 Vakhnom Homecoming float, which garnered for the cultural unit the "Most Humorous" trophy.

Y Spirit Kindled By Young Men

Seeking to keep the "spirit of the Y" alive in the student body and in themselves, the Young Men sponsored pep activities and opportunities for personal growth. Recognized by their white caps at athletic functions, members also promoted spirit by selling blue and white balloons at the Homecoming game, and sponsoring Homecoming Queen Joyce Johnson. Although the club moved along its evolution into becoming "Sigma Epsilon," the traditional Young Men spirit reigned.

Chere Amies Breakfast Early

Chere Amie's purpose was to bring girls closer together to help them find new interests through sports, cultural, spiritual, and social activities. The 34 Chere Amies (dear friends) attended firesides, culture nights, and participated in three intramural sports. The club garnered the prize for "most beautiful" snow sculpture in the Winter Carnival contest, and hosted an old-fashioned Christmas party at the Chalet in Midway for their dates. The thoughtful Chere Amie officers roused the members out at 6:30 a.m. on a frosty morning for an early surprise breakfast.

Delphis Develop Sisterhood, Spirituality

Membership in Delphis culture unit gave 41 girls the opportunity to associate with a variety of friends on an individual basis. In an effort to attain sisterhood and to develop spiritually, culturally, and socially, the club held firesides, exchanges, a Spring Picnic, and Spring Formal. One of the year's highlights was a temple trip in December to do baptisms for the dead.

Debaters Travel East To Meet

The 40 members of the Forensics Club participated in intra-school competition in debate. The year's National Collegiate debate topic was "Resolved that the Federal Government should grant annually a specific per cent of its income tax revenues to state governments." The BYU club, a perennial power in the West in debate, sponsored the BYU Invitational Debate Meet Oct. 24-25. Thirty universities participated. The club also traveled to the Loyola Invitational, Santa Barbara Invitational, and Western Speech Tourney, all in California, and participated in an Eastern Tour of several eastern universities.

DC's Raise International Flagpole Funds

A four-year service club, Dileas Chalean was an important asset to campus public relations. DC members acted as hostesses to guests on campus, and conducted tours of the BYU facilities. Proceeds from Singing Valentines and other projects went toward construction of an International Flagpole, built this year. The culmination of three years planning and work, the flagpole will display flags of various countries on their respective national holidays.

Polynesians Consolidate For Growth

The 79 members of Polynesian Club sought to study and understand the various cultures of Polynesia and to disseminate their beauties and virtues among the student body of BYU. Formed one year ago by combining the memberships of Kia Ora Club and Hawaiian Club, the group met weekly to cultivate their talents. Polynesian Week and the Polynesian Assembly showed the work of the club.

Sounds Of Freedom Sing At Expo '70

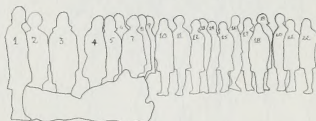

The Sounds of Freedom, in keeping with their purpose of instilling love and respect of fellow man and country within others, traveled far from BYU to sing their message. The 35 bright singers presented a November campus concert before embarking on a musical tour of the Northwest. In February, the group was sponsored by the Department of Defense and USO on an extensive tour of the Far East. In the spring, the goodwill ambassadors appeared for a week at Expo '70.

Y Calcares Sponsor `Belle Of The Y'

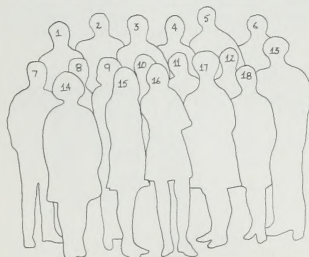

The oldest service organization on campus, Y Calcares, sponsored Belle of the Y this spring. The 30 members, sporting a 3.0 gpa, participated in church activities, exchanges with the IK's, and ushering. Work at Child Haven provided a rewarding experience for the club comprised of junior and senior girls. Y Calcares fulfilled their purpose by serving the school and community in any possible way.

Latin Americans Exchange Cultures

The Latin American Student Association developed association between Latin American students, and those having an interest in Latin America. Monthly parties depicting cultural facets of different countries gave the members a better acquaintance with various parts of Latin America. Special speakers discussed job placement and economics and political situations in Latin America. A highlight of the group's year was support of AYUDA, an elementary school in Guatemala.

White Keys Co-Edit Directory

Thanksgiving was a special event for White Key girls, who had a holiday fireside at the home of President Wilkinson. The 15 members of the senior women's scholarship honorary had as their main project of the year the co-production of the Student Directory. In traditional fashion, White Key lead the 1970 Homecoming parade with a large block Y. Christmas dinner in Salt Lake City and a May dinner dance in the Skyroom rounded out the White Key year of service and fun.

Although no major is offered by the College of Religion, the student found he was involved in the activities of the college through participation in religion classes and the Institute of Book of Mormon Projects. The latter organization gave the student a chance to use his talents in poetry, playwrighting, painting and virtually every other artistic and literary medium to portray his personal understanding of the Book of Mormon. A unique opportunity for dramatic interpretation came when the institute produced the play "People of the Book."

Modern religion students study in the Joseph Smith Memorial and can consult a first edition of the Book of Mormon (opposite top). (Above and opposite bottom) Father Lehi counsels son Nephi in scenes from "People of the Book."

Students Tackle Life Mechanisms

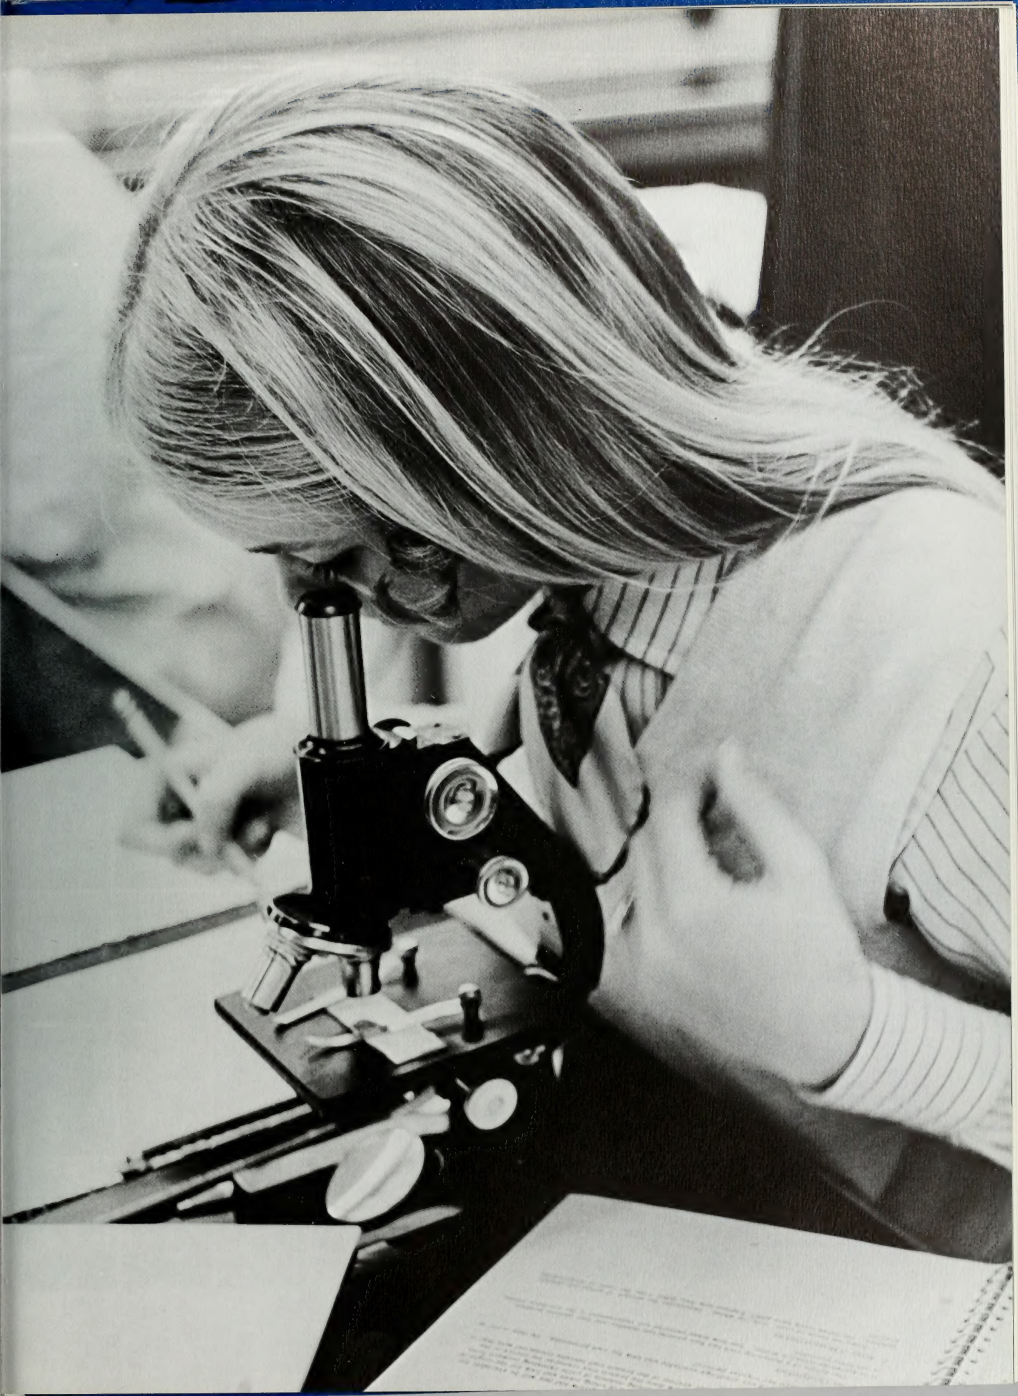

The College of Agriculture and Biological Sciences gave the student such varied career opportunities as marine biologist or dairy farmer; field botanist or geneticist; livestock breeder or entomologist. And in addition, the potential life scientist had the chance to develop himself. He learned not only the principles of the sciences, but to be a leader in developing and promoting new techniques in science. He molded a flexible philosophy which could adapt with advancing knowledge.

Actual practical experience came to the student of agricultural and biological sciences through excellent BYU facilities. Work in the care and breeding of livestock took place on BYU-owned farms, and advantageous uses of soil and fertilizer in crop growing were learned through actual cultivation experience.

The laboratory microscope gave the zoology major a glimpse into the fundamentals of the life processes. Later, he went on to do research on larger experimental animals in an effort to discover the workings of life. The microbiology enthusiast studied miniscule bits of animal and plant life to find their place in the scheme of life, disease, health, and death.

Majors Learn Business Ups, Downs

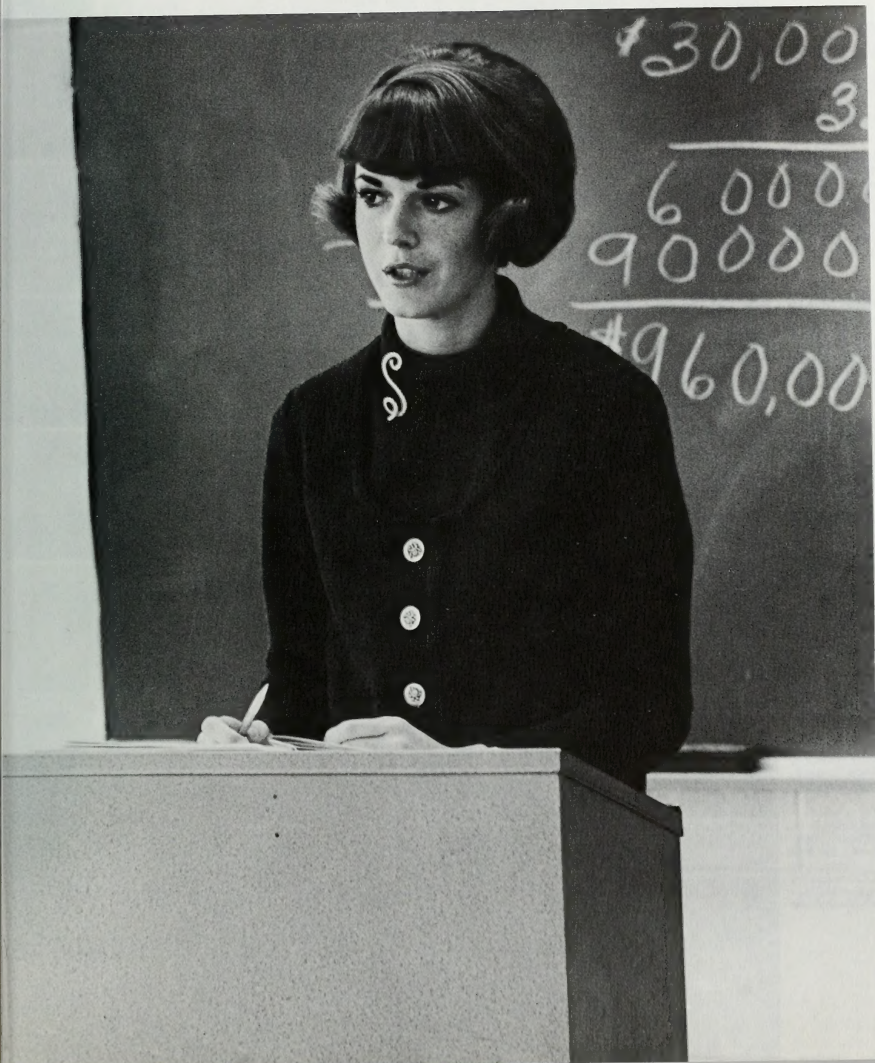

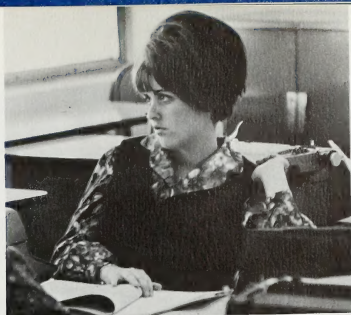

Studies in the College of Business led the student to possible careers in accounting, business education, economics, business management and secretarial work. The business student found his graduate work could eventually lead him to a masters degree in business administration—the highest paying degree offered, with starting salary of $20,000.

The student found he learned not only the manual skills of business, but the road to becoming a leader in the business community. He concentrated not only on acquiring knowledge per se, but on gaining insights, tools of analysis, and skills in problem solving. He sought an ethical outlook and the motivation for continued learning.

Looking forward to participation in a projected research coordinating program in the U.S. and other countries, the business student could anticipate a forthcoming summer seminar with possible study in Colombia. This would round his experience in human relations and international business.

Weldon J. Taylor, dean of the College of Business (left). (Opposite) A graduate assistant in the College of Business discusses business mathematics in an Accounting 232 class. (Opposite top) An enthusiastic typing student pauses to ponder the placement of a comma in a business letter exercise.

Interns Teach At 'Podded' School

"The teacher as exemplar" is the chief concern of the College of Education. The education student finds he is one of more than 5,000 enrolled in College of Education classes—yet he is allowed to go as far along the road to becoming an excellent teacher as his ability and desire take him.

The potential educator has varied programs from which to choose. He may participate in the individualized secondary education (I-Step) curriculum, the elementary internship program, or go on to pursue studies leading to administrative positions in education. The outstanding facilities available to the education student are exemplified by East Elementary School in Tooele. It is one of only five such schools in the nation shown to visitors to the U.S.

College Teaches Harmonious Living

The College of Family Living student looked to the future as he learned the essentials of living harmoniously with others. He had the opportunity of pursuing studies in child development and family relations, clothing and textiles, environmental design, family economics and home management, food science and nutrition, and home economics education.

The student found he could study in some of the most modern facilities in the nation. Here and in communities throughout the state, he could observe various aspects of human growth and development from infancy through old age. The goals of becoming professionally competent in his field and strengthening the family in the American society were actively pursued by the participant in the Family Living curriculum.

Contrast Leavens Artistic Endeavors

The opportunity to express the contrasting moods of his spirit followed the student in the College of Fine Arts and Communications. He could study the gamut from jazz to the classics; sketches to intricate oils; a booming political oration to Tennessee Williams; an advertising campaign to an educational television program.

The student found he was in demand as a musical or dramatic performer, as the artist for a campus gallery display, or as a journalist on one of the student publications. The great chances for involvement gave him exposure and confidence for his work after graduation.

While studying in the college, the student was a part of procedures to accredit programs in journalism and communicative disorders. He participated in the Festival of Mormon Art, displaying original work in the fields of art, music, and dramatic presentations. He fulfilled within himself the essence of the artistic force —contrast.

A photography student aims for that perfect shot, and orchestra members strive for artistic perfection in tone and harmony (above). (Opposite above) Dean Lorin F. Wheelwright takes time out from managing the affairs of the college to admire some student art work. (Opposite below) Form and texture are chiseled and molded into once-dead objects by an aspiring student. All forms of art and communications thrive at BYU.

A General College counselor-instructor explains the offerings of the different colleges at BYU, so students might choose a major they'll enjoy.

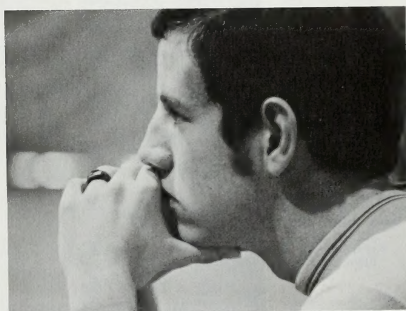

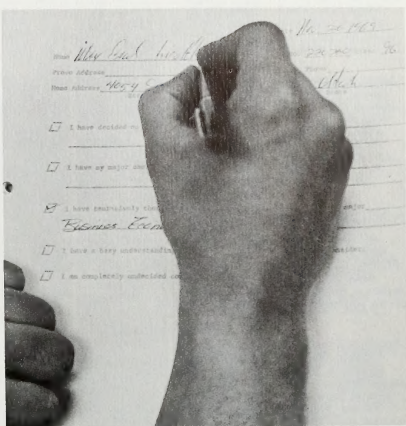

Career Guidance Aids BYU Enrollees

The student enrolled in General College finds a myriad of aids for deciding his major or developing skills essential to college success. He is a member of the largest college on campus, yet the faculty members that advise him are the smallest in number.

The American Indian student is met with programs to meet his specific needs in General College. He is not pampered, but is encouraged to learn his weaknesses and strengths and work with them. Credit courses help him become oriented to college life and teach him the basics of English, math, etc., if needed.

Dean Lester B. Whetten presides over the activities of General College.

Do all these forms know what I want to be? (top). (Center) Wonder if there's a Contemplation Ph.D. (Bottom) Personal counseling helps.

Humanities View Man, His Ways

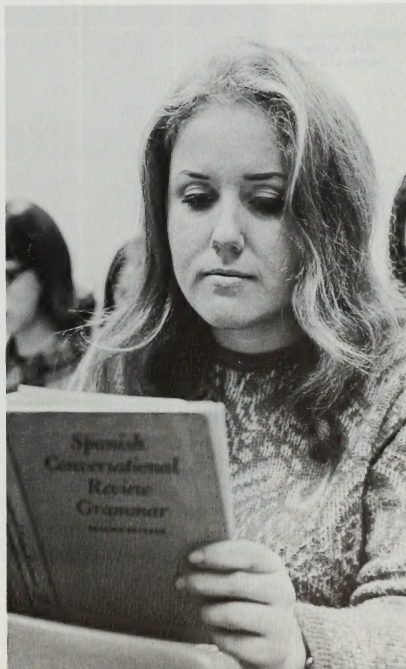

The study of man, his languages, his literatures, his philosophies, and his culture, was the path taken by the student enrolled in the College of Humanities. He became vitally involved in gaining what is termed a "liberal" education. Through exploring the great achievements of man both intellectually and artistically the College of Humanities major learned to mold himself into a useful and thoughtful human being.

Twenty-five languages were offered to the student interested in international verbal communications. In addition, he could learn the structure and relationship of the various languages to one another through linguistics courses. He found language a basic tool for furthering worldwide understanding. The student could study the peoples of the world first-hand by participating in Humanities-sponsored semester abroad programs.

The College of Humanities enrollee was able to discover the rich treasures of the world's literature and the intricacies of the American way of life.

Earphones are the key to better pronunciation and understanding in language labs (left). (Below) Ralph Britsch gathers examples of music and art for a humanities class.

College of Humanities affairs are ably handled by Dean Bruce B. Clark (top).
 (Above) Creative students are engrossed in interpreting a character. Spanish is one of 25 languages available for study at BYU (Right).

Nurses Cultivate Compassion, Skill

The College of Nursing student (unless he happened to be one of nine males out of 437 enrollees) found she had an exceptional opportunity to learn to contribute her services as a member of a professional health team. In line with the goals of college, she developed knowledge, skills, understandings, and relationships essential in the practice of nursing.

A new auto-tutorial lab facility helped the potential nurse use electronic media on an individual basis to supplement her other learning experiences. Classes at Utah Valley Hospital in the Provo community, and actual upperclass experience in nursing realistically prepared the nursing student for her responsibilities in the world of medicine.

Along with gaining a thorough knowledge of the technicalities and procedures of nursing, the BYU student learned the importance of compassion and love as tools in easing the burdens of the sick and incapacitated.

Even the relatively simple task of taking a temperature is an art to be mastered by the student nurse (top far left). (Bottom far left) As right-hand girl to the doctor, the nurse learns that some duties, such as scrubbing up, can have their humorous moments. (Left) Dean Elaine Murphy conscientiously looks after the interests of her students.

Sportsmanship, Good Health Emphasized

The major in the College of Physical Education found he was encouraged to become a leader of men, as well as to develop his own physical prowess. Through such college-sponsored activities as the outdoor survival program, rehabilitative physical education for the handicapped, and the intramural programs in various sports, the P.E. enrollee had a chance to improve his own life and the lives of others. Opportunities for intercollegiate sports competition and activities such as International Folk Dancers also came to the student through the college. A major in Youth Leadership was a possibility for the student interested in professional scouting and leadership.

"Turn right back and under that bridge" is the call for students in this square dance class (left). (Below) Fun-loving volunteer swimmers join in a water fight with the mentally retarded youngsters they are working with. (Top right) Dean Milton F. Hartvigsen leads the College of Physical Education. (Bottom right) Ballet is an artistic facet of the college. (Far right) A gymnast works out on the even parallels.

Engineers Seek Improved Life

Construction on the new Math-Sciences building, which began Spring Semester, offered new opportunities for study and research to the student enrolled in the College of Physical and Engineering Sciences. Scheduled to house the Computer Research Center and the Math-Statistics Departments the new building promised excellent training grounds for technical career preparation. The engineering student had a chance to exhibit his research and ideas Feb. 16-21 during Engineering Week "Environmental Design for the '70s". The student found career possibilities in chemistry, geology, mathematics, physics, statistics, and electrical, civil, mechanical, and chemical engineering.

Social Scientists Study Life Of Man

Whether delving into the intricacies of the human mind or the U.S. Government; the contents of a Mayan excavation or an arrestee's pocket; the shape of the American image in Asia or the land surrounding Hudson Bay, the Social Science student had the chance to develop academic excellence. As one of 3,033 enrolled in the College of Social Sciences, the student had excellent opportunities to study people, their ways of life and habitats. The social science enthusiast could study sociology, political science, psychology, geography, anthropology, or archaeology, and could participate in such special programs as asian studies, european studies, law enforcement, and international relations.

SEXING THE HUMAN SKULL

ON THE RIGHT SIDE OF THIS PANEL ARE TWO HUMAN SKULLS, THE TOP IS A MALE SKULL. THE BOTTOM FEMALE. THE ILLUSTRATION ON THE LEFT DEPICTS A MALE SKULL. YOU WILL NOTICE THAT THE FOUR AREAS LABELED, I. MANDIBLE, SUPEROBITAL RIDGE, NASION BRIDGE AND OCCIPITAL BONE ARE LARGER, LOWER, OR MORE PRONOUNCED ON THE MALE SKULL THAN ON THE FEMALE. I. COMPARE THE TWO SKULLS AT RIGHT. J. USING THIS CHART, TRY TO TELL THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE SKULLS LOCATED IN THIS CASE. THESE ARE BUT FOUR OF THE MANY POINTS ON THE HUMAN SKELETON USED BY ANTHROPOLOGISTS AND ANTHROPOLOGISTS IN DETERMINING THE SEX OF KNOWN INDIVIDUALS.

College Trains Business, Industry Leaders

The student in the College of Industrial and Technical Education found he had a myriad of pathways to education open to him. In the Industrial Education department, he could train for teaching and administrative positions in vocational, technical, and high schools. Careers in building construction technology, design and drafting, electronics, and manufacturing technology beckoned the Department of Industrial Technology student. Reaching across eight different colleges on campus, Technical Institute offered to the student such varied work fields as law enforcement, data processing, genealogical research, and nursing. The student could become a second lieutenant in the Army or Air Force through the Departments of Military Science and Aerospace Studies.

Everyday things like wire take on beautiful form in a crafts class (Above). (Right) A plane can make a harsh thing smooth, a smooth thing harsh.

The graduate student was encouraged to cultivate excellence and do his best with his capabilities. After being accepted into the Graduate College, the student found he had 57 areas in which he could pursue a master's degree. Doctoral degrees were available to him in 24 areas. As one of more than 2,000 grads, the advanced-degree seeker found college a bit harder.

The card catalog in the Clark Library is the key to graduate research success (above left). (Below left) An industrial design graduate student refines his techniques. (Below) Dean Chauncey Riddle heads the activities of all graduate students. (Right) A library carrel becomes home for the grad student writing his dissertation.

I stood in the midst of youth
And wondered . . .
What am I?
What's it all about?

I've done much,
felt much,
And I've learned.

Not just from books
But from life . . . its contrasts.

I found me.
And learned to build my worth
By reaching up to grasp life's simple joys.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS:

The following have made special contributions to the success of BANYAN 70 which we greatly appreciate:

Roberts Engraving and Litho Plate Company for the beautiful color separations.

Mountain States Bindery for the book binding.

Church Information Service for the pictures of the Board of Trustees.

Salt Lake Temple Square; and the temples in Logan, Manti, and Los Angeles for photographs at their locations.

BYU Motion Picture Studio for the use of a studio backdrop.

Norman Wright and Data Processing for help with the index.

Muriel Thole and Bill Sampson for help with registration sales; also Vern Saunders and Glen McClure.

The college Deans for their permission to shoot pictures in the classrooms.

BYU Photo Studio: George Hamilton, Leon Woodward, Stan MacBean, Lucille Taylor, and Mike LaRochelle, for the individual portraits and the music group pictures.

BYU Press: Frank Haymore, Delvar Pope, Leon Hunsaker, Helen Houtz, Julie Newman, Selma Crouse, Richard Hopkinson, Charles Pope, West Barton, Howard Nickols, Robert Welsh, Keith Gwin, Gary Griffin, Dale Howells, Lee Bernards, Dan Sundquist, LeRoy Barkdull, and Marvin Anderson, for the beautiful job of printing the book; and for their cheerful and patient assistance.

Jim Walker and Wally Barrus for advice and encouragement to the photographers.

D. Errol Miller for his outstanding lab work and for his constant and devoted support.

Paul Proctor for the beautiful color work and his cheerful encouragement.

The family of the Editor for their encouragement.

The Editor's roommates for their tolerance.

The staff, each for his personal effort in completing a beautiful book.

END OF TRACK

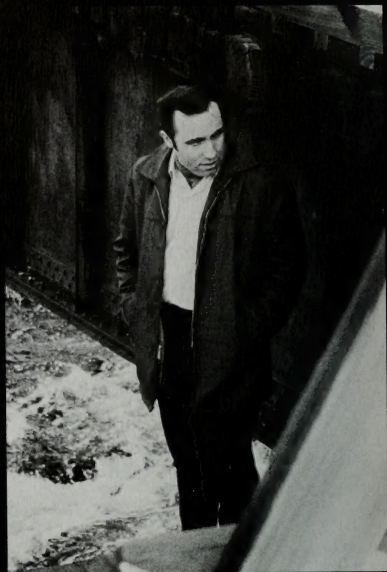

Everyone smile on three. One, two, three, click! With the advent of the simple, inexpensive camera taking pictures has become a new American tradition. The "instamatic" or its close relative seems to go everywhere and there records with some degree of accuracy the particular event.

How many times have "jumbo prints" passed your vision? There printed in full color are the "cheese grins" of the people involved. Posed, unnatural, smiling stiffly, they face the camera and the ever present flash cube.

To a photographer "taking pictures" becomes photography and the cheese grin becomes a curse rather than a blessing. The photographer seeks to see a segment of life as it really is — he seeks to record a genuine feeling that those who view the picture can readily feel and recognize.

There is something special about college life, about BYU, and this year we have tried to see that something. Somehow we have tried to see that unposed minute of life we call "reality." Look at it, think about it, and see if you can't remember life as it was this year at BYU.

PAUL F. PROCTOR

The educational experience is an extremely important one. It's here that we form our attitudes, character, and moral qualities that guide the rest of our lives. These are formed in a wide contrast of experiences. Contrasts that make us individuals, and yet unified in common goals. We hope that we have gained a sensitivity to the problems of this life, and there are many. We can look at the "new generation" and their ideas and ideals. But, we choose to look at those ideals and temper them with the proven values of past generations, rather than destroying our heritage. So we strive for an excellence in character and values. That's where our future lies. We will continue to learn and grow from both books and life's experiences.

Denot Miller

It was my older sister Ruth Ann who introduced me to BYU. Her enthusiasm sparked the love I have developed for our university. So as a tribute to her memory, I have tried to present in this book the feelings and experiences that I and many others have enjoyed during our years on this campus.

The staff has devoted endless thought and effort in making this yearbook an accurate reflection of each BYU student. It is more than a history book, more than a scrapbook, it is a book which searches the meaning of your life at BYU. I would request that you read it thoughtfully. Ponder about what we have said, and realize the import and the value of your year which it records.

Steven Harrison
